American Valuation Plenty of Iron and Coal Lord Beaverbrook, Thanks Tin in the Gold Crown

—By Arthur Brisbane—

(Copyright, 1921.)

President Harding tells the people something important in a few words: "The time is inopportune to talk of complete disarmament."

Some shriek, "Harding has shattered an ideal."

Perhaps, but Japanese landing on the Pacific Coast or flying above cities dropping dynamite would shatter window panes and other things more substantial, if less beautiful than ideals.

This country attacks nobody, and, like a peaceful man, should be deprived of weapons—last.

The fight against the unreasonable, aimless, confusing, unjust and dangerous "American valuation" plan in the Fordney tariff bill, started by Marshall Field & Co. in Chicago, has reached London. The American Chamber of Commerce in London yesterday denounced the plan that would put thousands of unnecessary jobs in the hands of politicians here and add thousands of worries to merchants already sufficiently worried.

Prosperity and employment depend on manufacture. Manufacture depends on retail selling. Congress should not put the retail business of the country at the mercy of an untried, confusing, unheard of regulation, certain to embarrass and discourage business.

You are told "coal is giving out," and assured positively that supplies of iron, easily obtained, will be exhausted soon. But cheer up. The Edmonton Bulletin tells of a valley of almost pure iron just located on the shores of Lake Athabasca. About fifty million tons of iron in the shape of loose block lie on the surface of the ground.

Deep water next to the iron deposit is convenient for ships also. The explorers have found nearby a hundred million tons of coal suitable for iron work.

Scientists prove that this earth is about as heavy as though made of solid iron. Much material in it. Also, when coal is exhausted the sun's heat will do the work. People once wondered where they would get oil when all the whales were killed off. They didn't dream of kerosene oil, much less of electric lighting.

Lord Beaverbrook, Canadian, now member of the House of Lords, owner of the London Express, very kindly warns us "unless the United States refrains from fortifying the Pacific island of Guam, there will be war between the United States and Japan in 1923."

Useful warning, and the result should be immediate, energetic, complete fortification of the island of Guam.

If a little thing like the fortifying of Guam, which we own, would persuade the Japs to attack us, the best thing we can do is to get ready for that attack, and fortunately you can depend on President Harding to do it.

If a burglar said: "Don't put a lock on your door or I'll break in," you'd put a lock on your door.

Dan Reid and William B. Leeds realized that there was money in the tin business on a high scale. Leid is alive making money in other business. Leeds is dead. His son, a boy of eighteen, marries a Greek princess, and as Mr. Blair, of the Detroit Free Press, points out in his editorial, a little tin is mixed with a gold crown.

Tin, mixed with copper, gave to the world the bronze age—the age of great progress.

What will American tin do mixed with Greek gold?

One thing is certain, the little American tin boy will be lost in the shuffle. He will be absorbed, and they will try to forget him, as in the crown of Hiero.

Mr. Lewis of the coal miners advocates a government loan of two and a half billion dollars to idle workmen. This would revive trade by giving those that cannot buy something to spend. This may shock certain minds that strangely were not shocked by the suggestion that we lend ten thousand millions to continue war in Europe.

In another dispatch from Washington of the same date you read that two million dollars have actually been loaned to farmers by the War Finance Corporation. That isn't two thousand millions, but it is no least a start.

SCHOONER ELSIE LEADS FISHER RACE

Is First of Five Contestants in Today's Contest Off Gloucester

Race Curse, off Gloucester, Oct. 13 (By the Associated Press).—Five fishing vessels lined up off Eastern Point today and at 10 a. m. sped away on a forty-mile race to determine which shall defend the honors won last year by the Esperanto in the international race off Halifax.

The Elsie turned the third mark, twenty-five miles from the start, at 12:34:50, in the lead. The Ralph Brown, turning at 12:32:40, maintained second place by a lead of only twenty-five seconds over the Arthur James. The Elsie G. Silva was several miles behind the James and the Philip P. Manta was several miles astern of the Silva. The wind had moderated a little at this point.

Weather conditions were ideal. The sea was smooth, with a twenty-mile westerly wind, when the start was made.

The Elsie, largest of the group, was slightly in advance as the five crossed the line with the Arthur James not more than a length behind. Others in the racing group were the Elsie G. Silva, Philip P. Manta and Ralph Brown.

The committee chose a course which started with a five mile run along the Cape Ann shore; thence around a thirty mile triangular course and a final home stretch of five miles along the coast.

The Arthur James led the Elsie by fifteen seconds at the turn at the end of the first five miles, covering the distance in twenty minutes flat. The Ralph Brown was a close third. The Elsie G. Silva turned at 10:27 and the Philip P. Manta at 10:28.

PLAY GAME IN FRIGID WEATHER

Smallest Crowd of Series Turns Out to See Critical Contest

Polo Grounds, New York, Oct. 13.—The Giants today annexed the world's baseball championship by taking the eighth game from the Yankees.

By their victory this afternoon the Giants won their fifth game in the series, the number required to give them the premier honors.

Today's pastime had hardly started when the Giants dashed away in the lead. With two on through passes and two down, Peckinpaugh jumbled Kelly's tap and Bancroft scored the first run of the game.

The setting for the eighth game between the leading National Leaguers and their Yanks rivals was decidedly frigid. Dark skies lowered and a cold breeze from the northwest chilled the spectators through and through.

The game brought together Pitchers Waite Hoyt and Art Nehf for the third time. Hoyt has won two decisions and is regarded as the only

ALLEN MOVES TO DISBAR LEVENSON

Proceedings Filed in State Supreme Court Make Four Specific Charges

Disbarment proceedings against Harry M. Levenson, Boston attorney mentioned in the Tufts case, were filed today in the Supreme Court of the State by Attorney General J. Weston Allen. The petition is based on four specific charges:

First, that he charged clients fees far in excess of legal services rendered.

Second, that he deceived clients for the purpose of extorting money from them.

Third, that in the case of David H. Brand, a client, who faced a court charge, he played on Brand's desire to avoid publicity and told him falsely that there were three charges against him, and that he could be sentenced to 20 years on these. It is alleged that Brand paid $750 and gave a note for $4,500 payment in weekly instalments of $100 and that subsequently Levenson permitted Brand to be defaulted on one charge, knowing that that was the only charge against him.

Fourth, for actions in connection with the Universal Service Corporation that figured prominently in the Tufts case.

CRISIS IN IRISH PARLEY

London Conference Suddenly Adjourns, Michael Collins Threatening to Withdraw

By International News Service.

London, Oct. 13.—The gravest crisis of the Irish situation was reached this afternoon when the peace conference suddenly adjourned and Michael Collins, the outstanding figure of the Sinn Fein delegation, threatened to withdraw.

The crisis had been precipitated by Premier Lloyd George, who asked the Sinn Fein delegates whether they would consent to a continuation of the deliberations upon the basis of Ireland remaining a part of the British Empire.

Upon the Sinn Feiners' answer depended whether or not the parley would continue.

At Irish headquarters it was officially denied that there had been a break in the conference.

When the adjournment was taken, shortly after 1 o'clock, Collins was apparently angry.

"Will the parley continue," he was asked.

"We are not coming back," snapped the commander-in-chief of the Irish Republican Army.

Before he could say any more, Arthur Griffith, head of the Sinn Fein delegation, broke in:

"Well, we are coming back at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning."

The gravity of the new developments were written plainly on the faces of the British envoys when they left the Premier's residence. Many looked worried and anxious.

The next session was set for tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock.

It was understood that the Sinn Feiners had made formal request for liberation of Irish prisoners from British detention camps, but were refused.

Sir Nevil Macready, commander of the British forces in Ireland, has promised better treatment of the Irish prisoners in British detention camps, but has refused to release them, it was learned this afternoon.

TAMPERING WITH CHARGE BY PARLEY COUNSEL

Count Rules Mrs. May Paul Is Witness for Rose After Hot Legal Tilt

Direct charges of witness-tampering were made today in the trial of the divorce suit of Joseph A. Murphy against Frances Stuart Murphy, art model and film star, before Judge Christopher T. Callahan in the Suffolk Superior Court.

They came in the thick of a hot legal tilt and when Francis P. Garland, attorney for Murphy, repudiated Mrs. May Paul, divorcee and star witness in the proceeding, with the charge to the court that:

"I have very good reason to believe she has been tampered with."

And with this, Judge Callahan ruled that Mrs. Paul be now considered a witness for Edward Rose, Newton millionaire cotton waste broker, and who is charged by Murphy with being the entrancing Lothario who stole the affections of his wife.

SIGNED AFFIDAVIT

Mrs. Paul had testified that she signed an affidavit for Murphy, the import of which she was not aware of. The first she knew of what it was, she testified, was when she learned from Rose and his attorney something of what was in it, when they asked her if she knew she had signed a paper saying that she knew Rose and Mrs. Murphy had been intimate.

"No, I didn't know they were intimate," she testified she told Rose's attorney. She declared she thought that she had merely signed a paper that she would testify as a favor for Mrs. Murphy.

Mrs. Paul came in for a severe

COUNSEL CHARGES WITNESS TAMPERING IN MURPHY DIVORCE CASE

MRS. MAY PAUL REPUDIATED IN OPEN COURT ACCUSATION

grilling as she faced the court today.

"Where do you live?" asked Attorney Garland.

"With 'Pop' Alexander, No. 221 West Fifty-first street, New York."

"Does anybody else live there?"

"Yes," and she proceeded to name three women.

"Has this apartment ever been raided?"

"Not to my knowledge."

"What is your occupation?"

"I am sick."

She then added that she had worked as a stenographer, and also as bookkeeper, for Dr. Josepha, who also occupied a part of the Alexander apartment.

She testified that Rose and David Stoneman called on her in New York in connection with the case and that she saw Rose in Boston in July or September of this year. Rose paid her expenses then, she declared, and Alexander on this trip accompanied her here, though she believed Rose reimbursed Alexander.

Prior to the testimony of Mrs. Paul, John E. Hannigan, counsel for Rose, called Attorney Frank Lavelle, who told the court that he had never advised Mrs. Murphy to consult Attorney William J. Kelly in the divorce action. He declared he met Mrs. Murphy in the corridor of No. 40 Court street, that Mrs. Murphy said she had consulted Mr. Kelly and asked him as to his standing as an attorney. He replied favorably to Mr. Kelly, he said, and his "was the extent of the discussion. Just before the divorce case came to trial, Kelly withdrew as counsel.

WIFE TO SPARE NO ONE.

Judge Callahan then explained that Lavelle was testifying at his own request, as he had sought out the Court to explain that he had been "embarrassed" by the mentioning of his name as having recommended Attorney Kelly to Mrs. Murphy.

Mrs. Paul, recalled, was questioned by Attorney Hannigan, counsel for Rose.

Q.—Did you have a conversation with Mrs. Murphy in this year in regard to making some easy money by "framing" somebody? A.—Yes.

Q.—Who was present at that conversation. A.—No one was right near us, but it was in the office of Charles F. Abbott.

Attorney Hannigan then offered the papers in the $100,000 alienation of affections suit, brought by Mr. Murphy against Rose.

ASKED LOAN.

He then read a letter dated August 19, written by Mrs. Murphy to Mrs. Paul, who was then in New York. It follows:

"19 North Russell Street, Boston.

"Dear May—Would you do me a favor, and it is this. Send me $35 at once, special delivery, as I want to come to New York, and as soon as I get there I expect to be able to pay it back in a week. I am through with Joe. Now we can travel. I arrived Monday and things look tough here, and I am sure when I get to New York we can start things, or else we can go some place else. I will tell you all about it when I see you and we can talk things over. I sent this special delivery so you can get it by Friday, and if you send me a money order I can cash it right away and leave at once, and I will wire you what train. I am staying at my cousin's for a few days, so send me the loan I ask for, special delivery. I have a whole lot to tell you when I see you. Hoping you will send me the money order at once, I remain, PAN."

The next witness was Charles F. Abbott, a State street broker.

Q.—Did Mrs. Murphy suggest in your presence that she should "frame" Louis Green, who had brought some kind of a suit against you? A.—No, absolutely no.

Q.—Did you on the 18th of last August tell Attorney David Stoneman in his office in the presence of a stenographer that about the first of February that Mrs. Green had suggested that Green could be "framed" by her going to New York with him? A.—I did not.

Q.—Did you a few minutes ago, before you took the witness stand, say to Attorney Maurice Tober, counsel for Mr. Rose, that he'd better not put you on the witness stand, as you were liable to do his client more harm than good? Upon objection of Attorney Garland this question was excluded.

Q.—Did Mrs. Murphy suggest to you in the presence of her husband that she could get some money from our friend, Mr. Rose? A.—No.

SAYS MURPHYS NEEDED MONEY.

Q.—Did you tell that to Mr. Stoneman? A.—No.

Q.—Did your wife, last February, loan Mrs. Murphy a diamond platinum watch to be pawned? Mr. Garland objected to this question whereupon Mr. Hannigan said, "I propose to show that both Murphy and his wife were hard up for many months prior to the filing of this divorce libel, that they were in debt and were financially embarrassed in various ways and that some time before this Murphy separated Mr. Murphy said she was going to leave. I also propose to show that Mrs. Murphy borowed a diamond platinum wrist watch from Mrs. Abbott and pawned it. I also offer to show that since the bringing of this divorce libel Mr. Murphy told Mrs. Abbott that he would take the watch out of pawn for her. I am undertaking to open the door wide and do no finessing of any sort."

Attorney Vaughn, counsel for Mrs. Murphy, said: "I can't see how the financial condition of either Mr. or Mrs. Murphy has anything to do with the case."

Hannigan replied, "I expect to show conditions at the time of the filing of the divorce libel."

The court excluded the question.

ABBOTT MAKES STATEMENT.

Attorney Hannigan then told the court that the report of a constable was that a summons had been served "in hand" to May Abbott, wife of the witness.

"I'd like to make a statement," said Abbott, addressing Judge Callahan. "If the constable who made that return says he placed a summons in my wife's hands last Saturday it's an absolute lie and he's not fit to be a constable. My wife has not been in Boston for three weeks. She is in Guilford, Ct., and I fund the summons under the door when I returned from Guilford last Tuesday."

Judge Callahan told Attorney Hannigan that he would issue a capias for the appearance of Mrs. Abbott if the lawyer asked for it after investigation. Abbott said his wife would be glad to come to Boston to testify and he would try to have her here by tomorrow.

That no one would be spared in the action was the emphatic declaration of Mrs. Murphy before court opened today.

"I have suffered a great deal more my husband brout the divorce action against me last July," said the petite, bronze-haired screen star, who played opposite the late world-famous tenor, Enrico Caruso. "Joe Murphy is the only man I ever really loved and I would give anything I possess to become reconciled with him."

LACKED JUDGMENT.

"I am innocent of the charges that have been made against me. His true that I did wrong in permitting Mr Rose to call at my apartment in the absence of my husband and I have suffered for my lack of judgment.

"But my relations with him were not improper and I came back to Boston from Iowa to fight both my husband's allegation of unfaithfulness and the intimation of Mr. Rose's attorneys that I am in league with my husband and trying to blackmail Mr. Rose.

"The blackmail charge made against me is absolutely false and when I have cleared myself of it I am going to call on the attorney general and give him a great deal of information that I believe will be of great assistance to him in rounding up certain people in Boston.

"I am being done 'dirty' at present time, although I have always been square myself. Certain men in this city are worrying a good deal just now and they will worry more before I get through. I do not intend to mention any names at present.

"When this divorce case is concluded and I have cleared my name of these blackmail charges I am going to call the Attorney General about all my experiences in Boston since I came here from Smyrna, Turkey, at the age of eight years.

"I do not intend to spare anyone. I am going to give the Attorney General a complete story of my life and I feel certain that he will be glad to use a good deal of the information."

KLAN'S HONOR DEFENDED BY SIMMONS

Troubles of Ku Klux Due to Traitors and Press, Founder Tells Congressmen

Washington, Oct. 13.—The honor of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan is unsullied by the financial dealings of the organization, Colonel William J. Simmons, Imperial Wizard, today told the House Rules Committee, which is considering resolutions for a congressional investigation of the Klan.

Simmons characterized charges against the Klan as based on "suspicion and prejudice" and denied that Klansmen had destroyed court records in Atlanta, Ga.

The imperial wizard disclaimed malice against any race or creed. He described himself as an Irish Protestant, a member of the Baptist and of the Congregational churches, a Spanish American War veteran, and a law-loving and law-abiding citizen. After a lengthy defence of the Klan, with a general denial f any violent or lawless act by the organization, Colonel Simmons exclaimed solemnly:

"Standing here in the presence of God, before this committee from one of the greatest law-making and deliberative bodies in the world, and standing in the capitol of our great nation, I say to you gentlemen that if the Ku Klux Klan was guilty of a hundredth part of the charges that have been made against us, I would from this room send a telegram calling together the grand councilium for the purpose of forever disbanding the Klan in every section of the United States."

Colonel Simmons attributed the present trouble of the Klan to the "acts of traitors within the organization, the jealousy of other organizations, the unjustifiable attacks by the press." He said that similar assault had been made on the Masonic organization fifty years ago.

"There has not been presented and cannot be presented any proof that the Ku Klux Klan is an organization of outlaws or lawbreakers," he exclaimed.

$1,200 LARCENY CHARGED BY WOMAN

Fraser L. Davis, thirty-six years old, of No. 32 Concord park, South End, a chiropractor, chemist and inventor, the father of five children, was arraigned in Central Court today after being arrested by inspectors Donnelly and Loughlin, charged with larceny of $1,200 from Mrs. Margaret L. Carmody, forty years old, of No. 765 Tremont street.

Davis pleaded not guilty and the case was continued to October 19.

Last April Davis gave Mrs. Carmody a note payable on demand in return for $1,200, according to the story told in court. Shortly afterward they hired a Summer hotel at Lake Winnepesaukee for a four-year term.

Because the season was bad, so Davis said, there were small profits from the hotel. Mrs. Carmody, on her side, asked for her money back, claiming that at the time Davis borrowed it he misrepresented his affairs. She asserted she loaned him the $1,200 on the strength of his statement that he had money in the bank which he could not get out.

Davis announced some time ago that he had invented a way of running autos by kerosene. In his answer to Mrs. Carmody's charges he stated the trouble was a scheme to break the four-year lease. The disagreement started, he further alleged, when he hired a young girl clerk and Mrs. Carmody dissented.

WAITER AND TWO BOYS ARE HELD IN GEM THEFT

Providence, Oct. 13.—Two boys said to have admitted stealing $1,000 worth of jewelry from a local apartment house only to sell it later for $27 were arrested today by Police Inspectors Rattigan and Godfrey, while a restaurant waiter, charged with having been the purchaser, was taken into custody a few hours later.

One of the boys gave his name and address as George F. Heipin, 18 years old, of No. 931 Eddy street. The name o the other lad, who is only 15 years old and who will be arraigned in Juvenile Court, was withheld by police. The waiter was Richard L. Peck, 23 years old, of Brook street.

According to the police inspectors, the youngest boy, arrested first, told the entire story and enabled the officers to arrest the other two. Heipin admitted the charges against him, according to the police.

The two boys were charged with entering two apartments, occupied by Thomas H. Owens and Harry A. Waldron, in a building at No. 810 Benefit street. Included in the jewelry they were charged with having taken from the two apartments was a $300 Swiss watch, taken from Owens' rooms.

All of the stolen jewelry was recovered. Heipin and Peck will be arraigned in District Court tomorrow.

PULMOTOR USED ON GIRL WITH FRACTURED SKULL

Calling on the city fire department for a pulmotor for the first time in the history of the institution, physicians at the Massachusetts General Hospital used the instrument to prolong the life of eighteen-year-old Ruth Palmer, suffering from a fractured skull as the result of an automobile accident. Their efforts were successful, for the time, at least, and the girl is alive today, although still in a serious condition. Miss Palmer's home is at No. 226 Belmont street, Everett.

DEPOSITORS ASK REMOVAL OF ALLEN

Liquidating Agent Hannigan of Prudential Trust Also Scored in Letter to Cox

Removal of Bank Commissioner Allen and an investigation of the conduct of affairs of the closed Prudential Trust company by Liquidating Agent John E. Hannigan, are urged by the Depositors' Protective Committee in a letter to Governor Cox, made public today by Daniel T. O'Connell, counsel for the committee.

The committee, made up of Joseph E. Doherty, chairman, Mrs. John J. Dixon, secretary, William A. Hastings, Kaufman Bregor, John J. Riley, and Francis M. Doyle, points out that it is now more than 18 months since the trust company was closed by order of Allen.

It also charges that certain irregularities have been permitted in the management of the affairs of the closed institution and adds that the conduct of Hannigan has "created a situation which in our estimation requires immediate investigation."

The text of the letter follows:

"I wish to call to your attention that today is thirteen months since the close of the Prudential Trust Company. Thirteen months ago today all the property, including deposits, were taken over by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, through its representative, Bank Commissioner Allen, who, in turn, appointed John E. Hannigan as liquidating agent.

"The committee, at request of depositors representing a substantial part of the deposits, have been earnestly endeavoring to get some information as to the disposition of their property, which has been, and is now, in the hands of the State officials. We have requested Mr. Hannigan to give us information which we believed, and which you assured us, we are entitled to.

"The treatment which we received from Mr. Hannigan, and his acts as far as we have been able to learn since, have created a situation which, in our estimation, requires an immediate investigation. And we have told you in our previous letters we have no confidence in him, and we have appealed to you to protect our interests.

"There is no doubt in our minds at this time that the Bank Commissioner should be removed from office.

"Developments in other banking institutions, and methods pursued by Mr. Hannigan in the Prudential Trust Company liquidation, cannot remain in the unsightly condition that has prevailed for the last thirteen months.

"Rumors are current that responsible men, who were borrowers, and amply able to pay, were allowed to settle for 10 per cent. There are also other rumors that real estate mortgages of a total value aggregating more than $100,000 were sold to irresponsible parties at less than 50 cents on the dollar.

"If the foregoing is true, it is time that the Governor should take action, or at least, ask for the information of what is being done with the assets of the Prudential Trust Company."

If you were to guess from now until Sunday paper time you never would guess who has landed in the Comic Section of the Boston Sunday Advertiser! Friends of yours, too. Don't want to blab, but will go so far as to say Tom McNamara is their guardian. Now, do you know? Don't tell anyone.

"Not Guilty" Is Plea of Arbuckle to Charge of Manslaughter

By International News Service

San Francisco, Oct. 13.—Roscoe C. "Fatty" Arbuckle appeared in Superior Court here today to enter a plea of "not guilty" to a charge of manslaughter preferred against him as the result of the death of Virginia Rappe, film actress.

Arbuckle was accompanied from Los Angeles by Milton Cohen, his personal attorney, and upon arrival went immediately to the Hall of Justice, where his present chief of counsel, Charles H. Brennan, was waiting for him.

Announcement of appointment of Gavin McNab as chief of counsel was anticipated today. Following his formal plea, the date was to be set for trial.

QUINCY MEN DIE IN AUTO WRECK AT PEMBROKE

Philip D. Cook, wealthy real estate operator, and Edward J. Parker, attorney, both of Quincy, were killed when the automobile in which they were riding on the Pilgrim Highway overturned in North Pembroke today.

Cook was crushed beneath the machine and died almost instantly. Parker was removed to the Brockton City Hospital, where he died. Peter Rockwell, owner and operator of the machine, escaped with a few minor injuries.

Cook and Parker were on their way to Plymouth to look up the title to some land Cook had purchased in Hingham. Passing through North Pembroke, the driver turned out to allow another machine to pass and the touring car struck a rut, turning completely over.

Bystanders hurried to their rescue, but Cook was dead by the time he had been released from beneath the car.

Cook was about forty-two years old and lived on Brackett street, Quincy. Parker, who was about fifty years old, had offices in the Savings Bank Building, Quincy.

NEW JAIL RULES AROUSE OLD FEUD

The feud created between the county officials and the Republicans in charge of the State government by Governor Cox's recommendation to abolish county control of the county penal institutions broke out again before the Governor's Council today.

A delegation of county commissioners, headed by John M. Grosvenor of Essex County, went before the council and protested violently against rules prepared by State Commissioner of Corrections Sanford Bates for administration of jails and houses of correction.

Bates said the rules has remained unchanged for sixteen years. Grosvenor protested that Bates was attempting to "put the rules across" without giving the commissioners a glimpse of them. Bates refused to let he sent the rules months ago to the sheriffs.

Grosvenor said the new rules proposed to allow food to be brought from the outside to persons awaiting trial in jail, but not to persons under sentence. Bates said the indiscriminate introduction of food from the outside "might be used for traffic in drugs and to conceal dangerous weapons."

Both sides accepted a suggestion by Lieutenant-Governor Fuller to confer, each on an agreement, if possible, and report back to the Council next week.

OVERCHARGE FOR GAS ADMITTED BY COMPANY

Cambridge Concern Selling to Quarter Meter Customers 25 Cents More Than Rate

An admission that the Cambridge Gas Light Company is charging $1.00 per 1,000 cubic feet for gas sold to customers who use the "quarter" or prepayment meter was today made by President Barnes of the company at a hearing before the State Department of Public Utilities. Other patrons are charged only $1.35.

The admission was made during a hearing on the protest made jointly by the city governments of Cambridge and Somerville.

City Solicitor Frank W. Kaan of Somerville said the alleged discrimination is being practiced against 4,300 consumers who use the "quarter" meters. At one time recently 10,000 meters of that kind were in use there.

He also declared that the company should not be allowed to go forward with its alleged plan to abolish the "quarter" meter.

City Solicitor Peter J. Nellikan of Cambridge denounced the commission. He said that when attempts were made by the city of Cambridge to force down the price, the company made a voluntary cut and the commission accepted it and closed the hearings.

He said that if an exhaustive investigation had been made, the conditions surrounding the use of the "quarter" meter would then have been exposed.

GIRL CAN'T FIND PROPERTY OF SEARLES

That attorneys for Miss Mary Johnson of Rockport, who brought suit against Victor A. Searles for $2,000,000, charging breach of promise, are having a difficult time finding property of the defendant to attach, was revealed today when the executor under the will of Edward F. Searles, uncle of Victor, filed an answer in the Superior Court here that the $250,000, which Miss Johnson's lawyers seek to attach, is claimed by the University of California.

The will of the eccentric millionaire of Methuen provided that if Victor contested his will, the $250,000 left to him should go to the University of California, Victor did file a petition to break the will, but a settlement was reached with the chief benefactor, Arthur T. Walker of New York, whereby young Searles received several millions of dollars.

Attorneys for Miss Johnson said the only property here they could attach was the $250,000 bequest, but it is now claimed by the University of California.

EX-MAYOR CURLEY CALLS MURPHY A TRAITOR TO COLLINS

BELITTLES BACKING OF G. G. A.

Endorsement of the candidacy of John R. Murphy for Mayor by the Good Government Association drew forth today bitter attack upon Murphy and the G. G. A. from ex-Mayor James M. Curley, also a candidate.

At his Jamaica Plain home Curley today declared that the endorsement of the organization is "now valueless" and was a reward of "base treachery" to the late Patrick A. Collins.

In a formal statement Curley said:

"This endorsement of Murphy by the Good Government Association is a long-delayed reward for abandonment of principle and base treachery to one of the greatest leaders of his race in the history of America, Patrick A. Collins.

"It was an action not unanticipated and in strict keeping with the law of compensation which provides that every good deed shall be rewarded and that every evil deed shall be punished.

"The indorsement of the Good Government Association is valueless."

In the statement accompanying the formal announcement of its endorsement of Murphy's candidacy the Good Government Association characterized the entry of District Attorney Pelletier into the mayoralty race as a "bold and desperate step to escape impeachment," and declared that "the same element that stands behind Pelletier also backs Curley."

Mr. Murphy is hailed as the man of the hour, in the customary preelection statement of the association, to overcome the menace it perceives behind the "smoke screen" of Mr. Pelletier's candidacy. The ex-fire commissioner is pronounced the best of all available candidates in the field and competent to carry out the principles of the city charter.

Fully as much of the statement, however, is devoted to a condemnation of Mr. Pelletier as it is to the lauding of Mr. Murphy's qualifications. The association declares specifically that fear inspired the District Attorney to run and that he is endeavoring to have his impeachment tried on the street corner instead of in court.

Ex-Mayor James M. Curley's candidacy is dismissed with the comment "that whether Mr. Curley retires or not, the same element stands behind them both, and on election day will concentrate its entire strength behind only one of them."

Murphy's Resignation Accepted by Mayor

Text of the letter of resignation sent by Fire Commissioner John R. Murphy to Mayor Peters, and announcing officially his candidacy for mayor, together with the letter of acceptance by the Mayor, was made public today.

Commissioner Murphy's letter to the Mayor follows:

"Certain conditions arose today which compelled me to make a statement that I would be a candidate for Mayor of Boston. I assume that I will not actively participate in a political campaign until November.

"At the present time I am finishing up a report on motor apparatus purchased under your administration and the motor apparatus purchased under the previous administration. I am also arranging the details of taking over the high pressure fire system by the Fire Department.

"It will take at least two weeks to clean up the above matters and others that are 'hanging fire' in the department.

"I submit my resignation as Fire Commissioner of the city of Boston to take effect on November 7, 1921. If, however, you decide that it would be advisable to accept it at any time before that date, I authorize you to do so.

"I wish to express to you at this time my appreciation of your unvariable kindness and courtesy to me. It has been both a pleasure and an honor to serve as Fire Commissioner under a Mayor like yourself who at all times has used business judgment of the highest order in the building up of the Boston Fire Department."

The Mayor's reply, dated today says:—

"I have just received your letter of October 10th in which you submit your resignation as Fire Commissioner to be effective on November 7, 1921. In accordance with your wish, I hereby accept your resignation to be effective on that date.

"It is with sincere regret that I accept your resignation as Fire Commissioner. My association with you has at all times been most satisfactory and cordial, and your administration of the affairs of the Fire Department has brought that department to a state of efficiency which I believe has seldom been approached in its history. I congratulate you upon the record you have made.

"In closing, permit me to offer my best wishes for your success in the campaign which you are now entering."

WOMAN SAVES HORSES AT LEXINGTON BLAZE

A two-alarm fire which called out all available pieces of the Waltham fire department today destroyed the barn on the farm of William F. Martin, on the State road in Lexington, with an estimated loss of $1,000. The heroism of Mrs. Dan Bombard, wife of the caretaker on the farm, who dashed into the blazing building and led two horses to safety, together with similar efforts by farm hands, prevented the livestock from being burned to death. No cause for the blaze can be found.

"ALWAYS A GOOD GIRL," SAYS HER MOTHER

MARGARET ANDERSON

Fifteen - year-old victim of abductors, held prisoner for eight days by men in woods of Stoughton. The girl still is dazed by her experiences.

"She was always a good little girl. She never gave me any cause for suspicion, any cause for anxiety. She was obedient, dutiful and loving. It seems impossible that such a dreadful thing could have happened to my own, beautiful young daughter. And, because such a misfortune has come to her, just so soon as she is able, I shall encourage her to tell everything she can remember. Because the guilty should be brought to justice, and other girls, innocent as my own child, should be saved before it is too late."

So speaks Mrs. Hilma Anderson, mother of Margaret Anderson, fifteen years old, who was abducted by unidentified men on October first, and found, eight days later, in a dazed condition, in the woods of Stoughton. Mrs. Anderson, with motherly grief and solicitude tells all the facts which, as yet, have come to her notice.

"UNDER DREADFUL FEAR."

"First of all" explains she, "my daughter is in such a weakened state as yet, that I would not urge her to speak, for the world. What little she left me, of course, I listen to. But ever since she came back, Sunday, she has answered me in a dreadful fear—'If I tell all I know, mother,' says she, 'those men will kill me. They told me they would if I spoke. They said—death to you, if you open your mouth.' And, mother, there were so many of them in that hut—about 40 at different times. They said they would kill me.'

"That fateful Saturday night, she went out to the movies for a little recreation, as she often did, with my permission. The pictures are not far away and I always waited up for her. When she left she said to her two little sisters, 'Now take your hats, kiddies, and wash your hair and I'll be home early to crimp it for you, in little braids.'

"She always did that for her little sisters, because their hair, naturally, is straight. Well, I sat down, at about 10:30, right by the window to open the door for her when she came home. Eleven came, and no daughter. Twelve also, and still the child was not here.

FOUND BY BROTHER.

"Sunday, eight days after, we received word that a child, like ours, had been found in Stoughton. My son went for her. It was indeed his sister. When he spoke to her, though she was dazed and stunned acting, she knew him at once. 'Can I go and come home?' she asked her, and she nodded her weak little head.

"I never saw such a changed girl as she was. Her clothes and her condition, generally, showed that she had spent nights in the woods, just as she said. She had on the same clothing, but so unkempt. And she was so sleepy, that I could not find out all.

"But, already, she has told us that these men took her in an automobile to a camp, in the woods, and kept her there days. They locked her out and left her, defenseless, and she wandered about one whole night, at least. It wrings my heart to think of it. I used to be so proud of her looks, she was such a beautiful girl, but now I wish she had been plainer. For nobody can ever convince me but that those wicked men had watched her a long while, making up their plans, before they took her.

TELEPHONE GIRL FREED IN FUR LARCENY

Following revelations by Arline Roberts, 18 years old, when arraigned in Chelsea court today before Judge Abbott Bronson, charged with receiving a stolen fur scarf valued at $500, Joseph Brady, 19 years old, of Oak Island, Revere, was arrested charged with larceny.

His case was continued while police investigate in the belief that the girl was stumbled on the trail of an organized band of robbers.

The girl was found not guilty and dismissed, after she had told the court the scarf had been given her by Brady and that she was unaware it had been stolen.

And with the unfolding of the girl's story an amazing tale of how the furs were recovered, leading to the double arrest, was revealed.

The furs, the property of Mrs. Leo Maddigan of Dorchester, were part of some $1,500 worth of loot stolen from the home of Max Hall in Revere, where Mrs. Maddigan and her husband were staying.

Driving through Dorchester last Friday, Mrs. Maddigan came suddenly upon pretty Miss Roberts wearing a fur neckpiece that looked surprisingly like the one that had been stolen from her. Calling a policeman, she had the girl placed under arrest.

At the police court it had been given to her, police hurried out and placed Brady under arrest in connection with the $1,500 robbery. They in turn, with similar efforts by farm hands, prevented the livestock from being burned to death. No cause for the blaze can be found.

CHECK CASE SUSPECT SAID TO BE FUGITIVE

Springfield, Oct. 13.—In court today Gedney G. Sayre, alias Granville Genay of Middletown, N. Y., declared by the police to be a fugitive from justice, pleaded not guilty to larceny by means of a worthless check for $35.50 from the Higland Hotel. His case was continued to October 21. Unable to furnish bail of $2,500, he was remanded to jail. Police say he used a fictitious name on the check.

BONE SETTER LOSES LEGAL BATTLE

Exceptions taken by Henry J. Dragon, who was found guilty by the Superior Court of Springfield of practicing surgery without a license, were overruled by the full bench of the Supreme Court today.

Dragon, who operated as a "bone setter" in Salem, Worcester, Chicopee and Ware for thirty-five years, claimed that the law does not specifically provide that one must register with the State Board of Registration to practice surgery where one is doing so under an assumed name.

The Supreme Court decision says:

"While the practice of medicine in a strict sense may be divided into various branches, it includes . . . all remedying violence and accident by setting fractured bones. This result is within the reason of our decision that it is required by the statute, notwithstanding both physicians and surgeons are referred to therein."

TOMORROW WILL BE "TIED CELERY" DAY

Tomorrow will be "Tied Celery Day" the farmers of the State will for the day at least, abandon the old practice of "tieing" the celery with raffia. Celery will be tied with raffia, a hemp-like substance. About 152 carloads of celery have been shipped in from other States this year, not a nail being used. Bay State farmers told here in that time the equivient of 150 carloads, all nail-tied. Customers complain that the nail rusts the lettuce heart and impairs the food value.

POLICEMAN IS ARRESTED AS BURGLAR

Ewen S. Cameron of Brighton, Arrested by Brother Officers, Suspended From Force

Accused by brother officers of breaking and entering a Brighton grocery store, Patrolman Ewen S. Cameron, a member of the Boston Police Department over eighteen years, was suspended from the force today and pleaded not guilty before Judge Connelly in Roxbury Court. His case was continued to October 19.

The charges against Cameron, who has been connected with the Brighton Station for several years, caused a stir in police circles.

According to the charges, about 1:35 a. m. today, shortly after Cameron had completed his tour of duty and was in plain clothes, Patrolman Joseph J. Cadigan and Joyce of the Brighton Station, came upon Cameron inside the store of Fred W. Spaulding, at No. 344 Washington street. When searched a key to the premises was found in his possession, it was charged.

Cameron explained he had become suspicious something was wrong in the store as he passed it on his way home, but his brother-officer placed him under arrest and took him to the station, where a formal complaint charging breaking and entering was lodged by Sergeant John Murphy.

In court today, Cameron occupied a chair beside his counsel inside the bar enclosure.

Patrolman Cameron, when arrested, had taken none of the valuables from the store, the police said, but the larceny count charged him with the theft of the key.

The accused officer, was appointed to the force in August, 1905. He lives with his family at No. 199 Etna street, Brighton. During all of his service on the force he had an excellent record.

FOCH TO VISIT BOSTON, COX ANNOUNCES

Field Marshal Ferdinand Foch, commander in chief of the allied armies against Germany, will be a guest of Boston during his stay in the United States next month.

The office of Governor Cox made an official announcement to this effect today. The statement said that early last Summer the Governor had extended a formal invitation to the great soldier to pay Boston a visit during his stay in this country.

Today the Governor received an informal notification that the field marshal would come to the Hub while in this country. Definite information regarding the date of his visit and the length of his stay is expected later.

Foch Eager to Visit All States, He Says

By Associated Press.

Paris, Oct. 13.—Marshal Foch would be compelled to travel more than 20,000 miles and visit nearly every State in the American Union, if he should accept all the invitations he has received from the United States since it was announced that he would cross the Atlantic this Fall.

"Which of them will you accept?" an American visitor asked the Marshal recently.

"All of them," he replied, "and I would like to visit every State in the Union."

The Marshal's only apprehension as to the hospitality of the American people is the possible effect it may have upon his digestion. Remembering the condition in which Marshal Fayolle returned from his visit to America, Marshal Foch frequently murmurs; "Pour Fayolle!"

The Generalissimo of the allied armies is still amused over Marshal Fayolle's pleasantry when the chairman of the international committee in Boston showed him upon his arrival late one evening the program for the day following.

It began in the early morning with a sight-seeing tour; then followed a reception of delegations, a midday banquet and speeches, and then an afternoon reception. A public dinner and reception was scheduled for the evening, and this was to be followed by a ball.

"What do you think of it?" the chairman is reported to have asked the marshal.

"It lacks something," replied the marshal, "I see nothing regarding my funeral arrangements at the end of the day."

It might be remarked that Marshal Foch is abstemious in his daily life, his habits being almost ascetic in character.

GOVERNOR SMALL SUED BY STATE FOR FUNDS

Chicago, Oct. 13.—Suits to recover sums of money alleged to be due the State of Illinois will be filed at Springfield within the coming week against State treasurers for several years back, it was announced by Attorney-General Edward J. Brundage today. The suits will charge that interest on public funds has been withheld, and the defendants will include Governor Len Small, Lieutenant-Governor Sterling and Andrew Russell, all former treasurers, Brundage said.

Cooper Won by 'Slave-Like Adoration' of Woman

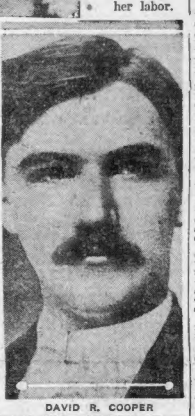
MME. MARCELLE DUREME

Mme. Marcelle Dureme, according to Mrs. David R. Cooper, was so fond of Cooper that she polished his boots, lent him money, and even went so far as to wash his feet, expecting nothing in return for her favors or her labor.



DAVID R. COOPER

"She Was A Handy Little Soul And I Loved Her," Captain Told Wife

By HAZEL CANNING.

"She was a good little soul, and oh, how I loved her!"

This is what Captain David R. Cooper told his wife, the latter says, when she found the picture of the French Madame Dureme on one side of his pocket folding picture frame and her own on the other side.

Mrs. Cooper, whose appeal to the court that her husband's divorce from her as a drug addict be not granted, was successful, shakes her head as she explains the way the captain tried to convince her it was perfectly all right for him to love the French lady.

"She was a handy little soul," the captain told his wife. "A fellow like me loves women who are intellectual, like Stella Smith, You, my dear, will never understand the high poesy of the passion of Stella Smith for me, because you are not the intellectual type.

SPENT NOTHING ON HER.

"But, also, a fellow likes the beautiful, slave-like adoration of Madame Dureme, for one. Now I never took her anywhere. I never had to pay out money to take her to dinner. I never had to spend cash on flowers for her, nor lace handkerchiefs, like I sent Wooden, nor a bead bag, which I brought back to one of my women friends here.

"No, my dear, instead Madame Dureme fetched and tended for me. She blacked my boots and it was a labor of love for her. She washed my feet and washed them well, at that. She would even lend me money and not expect me to return it.

"You can't understand, Margaret, but as a fellow has many corners to his heart, so he needs many ladies to fill the corners. That is the explanation of my great devotion to Madame Dureme."

Mrs. Cooper shakes her head, as she names over ladies of her husband's galaxy of dear ones.

"The captain, once, lost the madame's picture," she says, "and fretted and fumed and ransacked the house to find it. I knew where it was, but I would not tell.

"At last, one day, when he went to his trunk chest, to do some work, he met his lady fair again. There she was, pasted in the inside of the folding cover. I had pasted her there myself.

"First, on finding madame there, he burst into tears of joy, he was so glad to see the familiar face again. Then he burst into angry words. He knew I had pasted her there. He smoked me bitterly, and I explained, 'I thought you liked to see her about. So I put her where you wouldn't miss her.'

FREED HER FROM CHEST.

"But Captain Cooper freed her from her place on the tool chest. He did it as tenderly as if he were rescuing the real lady from a dangerous and deadly peril. Oh, yes, Captain Cooper loved them all, especially, he has tried to explain to me why he could love Madame Dureme, and Stella Smith, and Helen Horton, and Mary Allerton and me, all at the same time.

"Because I have a big heart, overflowing with kindness," he used to tell me. That was our chief bone of contention. I don't like this loving on the wholesale. For this reason I was never happy. These new fashioned ways may be all right, but, I am strong for one intensive love, of a man for a woman. That was why Mr Cooper and I could not agree."

Margaret Slattery Blames Parents for Wave of Jazz

Buffalo, Oct. 13.—Parents are to blame for the wave of jazz that is spreading over this land and they are responsible for the frivolities of present-day youth, declared Margaret Slattery, Boston lecturer, at the Sixty-Sixth annual convention of the New York State Sunday School Association at Jamestown.

"We hear much about short skirts and rouge on the girls of today," she said. "Let me tell you, we have given her the music of the jungle and expect her to love Beethoven. We have given her high-powered cars and let her ride through the night.

"She has done it and is still fine. She is no worse than her grandmother was. She knows more, but is unafraid. She does these things just because she does not want to be called 'queer.' She does these things for the same reason a man takes off his straw hat in September."

Mrs. Ira Rich Kent of Waverly Street is one of the most active among the Brookline contingent of society women devoting their time to the Simmons College endowment fund. Working shoulder to shoulder with Mrs. Kent are Mrs. Albert F. Bigelow of Warren Street, Mrs. Stephen Davol of Hawthorne Street—treasurer of the Simmons College Salvage Shop on Newbury Street—Mrs. Horace Soule of Walnut Street, Miss Mary Williams of Warren Street and her niece, Eleanor Williams; Mrs. Harvey Cushing and Mrs. William B. Wheelwright.

Several very generous contributions have been donated by private individuals. It bnts that Mr. and Mrs. Edwin F. Greene of Chestnut Street proved themselves princely by giving $15,000. Other contributions include $1,000 by Mrs. Paul Draper of Canton, $500, from Mrs. Ira Kent of Brookline, $500 from Ms. W. M. Wheeler of Boston, $500 from George Wigglesworth of Milton, $500 from Mrs. Henry B. Sawyer of Boston and $100 from Hester Cunningham of Milton. When one considers that none of these kindly donators claim Simmons as their alma mater, their action seems especially praise-worthy.

Mrs. John Chipman Gray is visiting Miss Louisa Loring at Pride's Crossing before moving into her house, No. 176 Beacon Street.

Mr. and Mrs. William A. Dupee of No. 90 Mariboro Street ,who have recently returned from Europe, are at the Hotel Vendome for a few weeks. Mr. and Mrs. Dupee were at Biarritz, France.

The Berkshires continue to attract a large number of society people from Boston, many of them visiting friends at their country villas and others staying at the various inns nestled among the hills.

Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland Bigelow (Frances Folsom) have as guests in their Cohasset home Mrs. Bigelow's mother, Mrs. George Winthrop Folsom, and her sister, Mrs. Joseph S. Wheeler, who are coming from Lenox. Recently a sister, Miss Elbridred Folsom, paid a visit to the Bigelows, returning to Lenox in time for the Arts and Crafts exhibition held last week in Lenox. Miss Folsom is an artist of no mean ability and the painting done by her of her father, seated in his study at Lenox, was considered one of the best works of art at the exhibition.

On November 5 Mrs. Calvin Coolidge will be the guest of honor at a luncheon to be given by Mrs. Franes, wife of the Senator from Maryland, at her Baltimore home. Mrs. Coolidge, with a number of Senatorial hostesses, will take the trip to and from Baltimore by special car.

MENTAL CASES AMONG VETS GET GOOD CARE

Legion Investigators Give Clean Bill of Health to Five State Officials

The five Massachusetts hospitals to which insane, shell-shocked and other mentally impaired veterans of the World War are sent for treatment were today given a clean bill of health by the Massachusetts Department of the American Legion at the close of a rigid investigation which began last June.

"A very careful and thorough inspection was made of all institutions," the investigation committee reported today. "They were looked over carefully from top to bottom and no phase of work was neglected.

"Every World War patient, so far as his condition would permit, was interrogated individually, asked about his treatment, urged to voice any complaint which he might entertain or any suggestion looking to his better care, treatment and welfare. Not a protesting voice was raised; all seemed perfectly satisfied with the manner in which they are being cared for and with their surroundings.

"As a result of the inspection we are satisfied that our mentally afflicted comrades in this State are being cared for properly, adequately and kindly and with the greatest possible solicitude for their general welfare. The experienced and careful treatment they are receiving is probably equal to, if not greater, than that accorded to any other class of disabled and sick World War veterans in the country."

The report, which details the conditions found in each of the five hospitals, says that "no evidence of harsh treatment by attendants was found." There were also no complaints against the food.

The investigation was made by Department Commander James T. Duane, State Adjutant Leo A. Spillane and John P. Holland and John J. Walsh, all of whom have been active in all the attempts made by the Legion to secure just treatment for disabled comrades. The hospitals inspected are the Medfield, Worcester, Westboro, Danvers and Boston State Hospitals.

FRANCE IN FURY AGAINST 'TIGER' HAPGOOD SAYS

Demand That Clemenceau Be Tried for Treason Political Move, Writer Declares

By NORMAN HAPGOOD

(Staff Correspondent of the Boston American.)

Washington, Oct. 13.—The breakdown of Clemenceau's popularity in France is as complete as that of Mr. Wilson's in this country, but the explanation is simpler.

Most Americans think of Clemenceau at Versailles as a reactionary and imperialist. As a matter of fact he was a liberal, if we compare him with the other strong forces in French governing circles. And what he is being punished for now is his liberalism, but his impotence.

From the standpoint of most French politicians what happened at Versailles was that Clemenceau gave up the desires of Foch and the other believers in a Rhine boundary by force, and accepted instead Mr. Wilson's League of Nations and Mr. Wilson's promise to join in efforts to bring about a temporary triple alliance to make France feel safe until the league should grow into a real protection.

Mr. Wilson was unable to deliver and the French politicians now point out that France has neither the safety from agreement, which Wilson promised, nor the safety from crushing military occupations and annexations, on which the Foch plan was based.

PROMPTLY KICKED OUT.

Clemenceau, therefore, is kicked out of popularity by his country with as much promptness and decision as was ever handed to any other popular idol.

Once an English statesman, at the height of his prestige, was congratulated by a friend on the enthusiasm with which the people followed him.

"Wait a while," said the statesman. "It will not be long before they are crying for my head."

Clemenceau in his youth was a radical. He took active part in the commune at the end of the Franco-German War. Since then he spent most of his time in sharp opposition to existing governments. It was in the savagery of his attacks that he earned his name of "the Tiger."

But being in power is something different from being out, especially for a person who is primarily a critic. When in power, instead of throwing bricks, you have a chance to see what they feel like.

DESERVES SYMPATHY.

Clemenceau deserves our sympathy, because he is more nearly right than are those who are turning public opinion against him. The crowd that have taught the French people to look upon the Tiger as the betrayer of their welfare are the crowd headed by Poincare and Foch.

They are the crowd that think safety lies in the French possession of territory up to the Rhine; in French excuses for marching to Berlin; in handling the Ruhr and Silesian questions not from an industrial point of view, but from the standpoint of weakening Germany.

Extraordinary revelations came out in the recent attacks on Clemenceau by the Poincare people, both sides referring to documents.

These documents show that Lloyd George did all he could to prevent the occupation of German territory. Wilson sympathised with him, but nevertheless France had her way on that point.

FOCH PLAN SUPPORTED.

They show that Foch's idea of getting hold of the Rhine for a French strategic frontier has by no means been abandoned, but has now more support than before, among French statesmen, because of the failure of Wilson to put through his plans for quieting French fears with international agreements.

They show also, that both the Poincare and the Clemenceau factions admit that the terms imposed on Germany are beyond her power to meet, and that this inability to meet the terms gives France an opportunity to occupy the Rhine indefinitely.

For the two principal opposing groups of French statesmen to explode that they have succeeded in imposing on Germany conditions that are impossible, because that gives the French military power an excuse for indefinite occupation, is about as wise as the reconstruction policy that was carried against the views of the dead Lincoln.

The present feeling runs so high that demands are constant that Clemenceau shall be put on trial for treason. The reason for this fury is that Clemenceau has not been as crazy as the Poincare people think he should have been.

Eureka! Landlord Who Demands Tenants With Children

Manchester, N. H., Oct. 13.—Hugh D. O'Dowd of this city has, by inserting the following "ad" in a local paper, reversed the usual formula and made children a requisite before letting his tenements: "Tenements, small, ground floor, hot water, lots of sun, to let; not less than five children wanted."

O'Dowd is a batchelor, but a great lover of children. In the twenty-one tenements which he owns in the city, there are forty-nine children.

COMMITTEES SPLIT ON AID FOR JOBLESS

Widely Divergent Remedies for Unemployment Proposed at Conference

By International News Service.

Washington, Oct. 13.—President Harding's national unemployment conference split along widely divergent lines today in the reports submitted by the various committees dealing with the present economic depression and suggested remedies.

A report submitted to the conference by the powerful Committee on Manufacturing contained recommendations of a drastic nature, including the total abolition of the Railway Labor Board, and the transfer of its powers to the Interstate Commerce Commission; the repeal of the Adamson (railway) act, and the settlement of the government's obligations to the railroads.

The labor members of the committee, Samuel Gompers, Mrs. Sarah Conboy and Roy Dickenson, refused to subscribe to the report and will submit a minority report.

The chairman of the committee on manufacturing is William M. Butler, president of the Butler Mills, of New England. Among its members is John E. Edgerton, president of the National Manufacturers' Association.

The majority of the manufacturers' committee held that by the transfer of the functions of the railroad labor board to the Interstate Commerce Commission opportunity would be given for the "reduction of operating expenses to be immediately reflected in the decreased cost of transportation."

Asks Gov. Cox to Call Legislature to Find Work for Idle

William A. Bradford, mayor of Quincy, today made public the text of a letter he has sent to Governor Cox, urging the State executive to call a special session of the Legislature to appropriate money for carrying out improvement projects now halted for lack of funds.

Mayor Bradford points out that "the coming Winter promises to be long, hard and filled with the menace of hardship to thousands now out of employment."

He adds that the starting of work on many state improvements would do much to alleviate the situation, and cites the action of Quincy, where a number of municipal projects have been started in order to aid those out of work.

RAILROAD UNION HEADS WORK ON STRIKE PLANS

Will Appeal to Harding, However, Before Ordering Walkout if Vote Is in Favor

By International News Service.

Chicago, Oct. 13.—Rail union leaders today continued conference here to plan for a strike they hope will not take place. The conferences, attended by the heads of the "Big Four" brotherhoods, are being held to outline procedure in the event that it becomes necessary for the brotherhood leaders to call the strike authorized by vote of their memberships.

With the union leaders in conference, executives of many railways of the country began arriving here for a conference tomorrow.

Heads of the unions, it is expected, will advise the railroad officials of the action of their organization in authorizing a strike and will offer to discuss other methods of settling the issues in dispute. Should this offer be refused or prove abortive, the union leaders intimated an appeal would be taken to President Harding before any strike call is issued.

The trunk, it is discovered, was routed through from Buffalo via Cleveland and Toledo. Woodbury was last seen when he left Buffalo in company with Ritter for an Automobile trip, on July 25. A month later his body was found near Harbor Creek, Pa.

HERE ARE THE MEMBERS OF UNION CLUB ATTACKED BY PELLETIER

"We want a place where gentlemen may pass an evening without hearing copperhead talk."

One of the founders of the Union Club thus epitomizes the sentiments which led to the formation of this club in 1863.

District Attorney Joseph C. Pelletier now proposes to expose "the Union Club, which, from its own interior, like the spider, spins its web to enmesh the State House, the Court House, the City Hall, hospitals, banks, charities, schools, newspapers, the legal profession and the medical profession."

KNOWN AS "LAWYERS' CLUB."

Perhaps the most aristocratic club in Boston, with a nation-wide influence, the Union Club, at No. 8 Park street, had its inception in the dark days of the Civil War for "the encouragement and dissemination of patriotic sentiment and opinion."

"Union Gentlemen" is what the early members were called and the club today is often referred to as the "Lawyers' Club," because of the men prominent at the bar and eminent on the bench, who are on its membership list.

Rarely may one look into the club at noonday and not find lodges of the experts at home there on Park street, and there is always a sprinkling of lawyers in the lounge room or billiard parlor.

LONG WAITING LIST.

Applicants for membership are carefully scrutinized, particular attention being paid to their "social antecedents" and prestige in the community. Many of the present members were "spared" on the list before they were a week old. The club numbers some 900 members, and has a waiting list long enough to insure a full membership for a quarter of a century.

In his attack on the Union Club, District Attorney Pelletier says:

"For several years there has been growing up in this city a combination of men constantly plotting to secure control of the political power of this city, in which many of them do not reside.

"Whether operating as a Good Government Association, a Bar Association, Watch and Ward Society, or under whatever high-sounding designation they may choose, their object is the same, their methods the same. All of these forces radiate from the Union Club."

PARKER PRESIDENT.

Samuel Parker, manufacturer and banker, is president of the Union Club. The vice-presidents are Edward W. Hutchins, a lawyer and banker, and Judge Frederick Cabot. Robert D. Weston, active member of the Bar Association, is secretary, and Pliny Jewell, insurance dealer and banker, is treasurer.

Members of the board of directors are: Felix Reckemann, lawyer; Alfred S. Aiken, banker; Alfred L. Pillsbury, banker; Philip M. Reynolds, manufacturer; Ezra H. Baker, banker; James A. Lowell, lawyer; Francis A. Seamans, lawyer; William H. Slocumb, banker; Pierpont L. Stackpole, lawyer.

VASSAR'S DRIVE IS ENDORSED BY HARDING

Wishes Success to Sister's Alma Mater in Campaign to Secure $3,000,000

President Harding, whose sister is a former Vassar student, on the opening of Vassar's campaign for a three million dollar endowment fund with which to raise the salaries of her professors, telegraphed his hearty endorsement of the purpose for which the fund is to be used, and his good wishes for the success of the drive to Chairman Arthur Leaher in New York, and asked that the message be forwarded to local chairmen throughout the country. The telegram reads as follows:

"My sister, a former Vassar student, called my attention to the salary endowment fund campaign, and I want to express my interest and hope for its success.

"The assurance of an adequate compensation to teachers is an important contribution to the development of our educational system peculiarly necessary at this time."

(Signed) WARREN G. HARDING.

Dyspepsia is Man's Nemesis

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets Have Turned Many a Grouch Into a Regular Good Fellow Again —Try Them

Indigestion makes people feel homeless, despairing, despondent and blue all over. It is only temporary, 'tis true, but while it lasts it's awful. Wise people keep a box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets handy to prevent these attacks or relieve them when they come. And such people eat what they like—pie, cheese, sausage, griddle cakes, pork and beans and other such supposedly indigestibles—without suffering from the acid, sour, belching, gassy stomach due to dyspepsia. These tablets give the alkaline effect to thus sweeten the stomach and make it comfortable. Try them if you are subject to indigestion. You will find them on sale at all drug stores at 60 cents a box.

You Just Know You're All Right After a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet

Just One Application and the Hairs Vanish

(Modes of Today)

A harmless, yet very effective, treatment is here given for the quick removal of hairy growths: Mix enough powdered delatone and water to cover the undesirable hairs, apply paste and after 2 or 3 minutes remove, wash the skin and the hairs have vanished. One application usually is sufficient, but to be certain of results, buy the delatone in an original package. Mix fresh as wanted.—Advertisement.

Roland D. Choate of Beverly, representing the American Legion; Arthur L. Lake of Providence, national sergeant-at-arms of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and Charles O. Power of the Boston American, have been appointed the Board of Morale and Discipline of the United States Veterans' Bureau for the First District by Charles R. Forbes, director of the bureau.

The appointments were announced today by Dr. Arthur E. Bridge, district manager. The district comprises the New England States, with the exception of Connecticut.

This board is one of the most important features of the Sweet bill passed by the last Congress and which completely readjusts the methods of caring for the disabled soldiers of the World War.

The bill combined the War Risk Insurance Bureau, the Federal Board for Vocational Education of disabled soldiers and sailors and the hospital service into the Veterans' bureau and shifted most of the power of decision from Washington to regional centres.

One section of the bill provides penalties for the violation of privileges by the beneficiaries, but gives the boys the right of appeal to district boards of morale and discipline. These boards are in the nature of district supreme courts. The members serve without compensation.

| Total | $1,500 |

Today's is a car, No. 16 in the Boston American's 1,500 Name-this-Auto Test, so easy that your little brother can name it.

Like asking you to identify the photograph of Warren G. Harding, Douglas Fairbanks or Babe Ruth.

The Boston American is printing fifty automobile pictures similar to today's in appearance, and asking its readers to identify them. At the end of the fifty-day Test $1,500 in awards will be shared by ninety-four readers, the largest prize being $500. All awards will be paid in cash.

ESSAY TO DECIDE AWARD.

How shall one find a place among the ninety-four? By naming correctly the automobiles in the pictures.

And is that all? Not quite. We rather expect that many of you will name correctly the cars pictured in the fifty illustrations. The larger awards, in that case, may be decided by the value of the views you set forth in an essay, or letter, on "Safety on New England Streets and Boulevards."

Each contestant will be required to send with the fifty identified pictures at the close of the Test an essay, or letter, of not less than fifty nor more than 100 words. Join the Walk Right-Drive Right movement! HOW shall we make streets and boulevards safer? HOW shall we act together, as good citizens, to reduce the appalling number of accidents?

MAKE SUGGESTION WORTHWHILE

Being an observant person, the thought may have come to you that the introduction of a new idea would help the traffic officer and at the same time make his crossing safer. You may have a new idea as good for example, as the "silent policeman"?

Write it out. We are not looking for Washington Irvings or Joseph Addisons. We shall not expect "style" in a fifty or 100-word letter. Write clearly and correctly. Be sure you have a worthwhile suggestion.

One Test Picture will be printed every week-day until fifty have appeared. Cut them out. Identify the cars. Fill in the coupon. Preserve the pictures.

Send in nothing before the end of this Interesting Test.

Radcliffe Fund Lecture

In aid of the Radcliffe College endowment fund, the alumnae of that college in Arlington are planning an entertainment in the Robbins Memorial Town Hall, Arlington Centre, next Monday afternoon, October 17, at 3:45 o'clock, at which Carveth Wells, Malay explorer for the British government, will give a lecture on "My Six Years in the Jungle."

WESTPORT TAX RATE UPHELD BY OFFICIALS

Fall River, Oct. 13.—The County Commissioners have rendered a decision in favor of the town of Westport against the members of the rich colony of that section of the town know as Acoxet. The Summer residents desired an abatement of property valuations, and the matter was settled following the receipt of an opinion given to the board by its legal adviser, F. S. Hall of Taunton.

Irvine at Ford Hall

TO FIND WORK FOR CANADA'S VETERANS

Convention at Port Arthur to Seek Means to Reduce Unemployment

Ottawa, Oct. 13.—The annual convention of the Great War Veterans' Association which will be held at Port Arthur, Ont., October 17 to 22, will endeavor to find means to reduce the unemployment situation among former Canadian soldiers and sailors.

The association is understood to regard unemployment as the most pressing national problem. It is expected that the convention will appoint a special committee composed of one member from each province to draw up resolutions on that subject.

The question of amalgamating all the soldiers' organizations in Canada will be brought before the convention. Representatives of other associations of ex-service men have been invited to attend to aid in discussing that problem.

The convention is expected to take steps to urge the Dominion Parliament to re-establish all ex-service men so far as possible in the economic position which they would have obtained but for their war service. It is likely also that the war veterans' will ask Parliament to extend its housing loan to former service men.

Resolutions on limitation of armaments will be submitted. It is indicated that these will be along the lines of those approved by the British Empire Service League at its meeting in South Africa and will call for adequate defense in the Empire but with the understanding that armaments should not be built up for offensive purposes.

BAR OF SOAP USED TO DISPROVE FALL

Cincinnati, Ohio, Oct. 13.—A bar of soap was used in determining the cause of the death of Jacob Snider, eighty, a farmer, near here.

Failing to find a motive for crime, some folk expressed belief that Snider was fatally hurt by reason of an accidental fall.

Dr. Charles W. Eckermeyer, however, did not accept this explanation of the aged man's death.

He said he used a bar of soap in making impressions of the edge of a chair and of a stove rail with a view to deciding whether Snider fell against either the chair or the stove rail and was fatally hurt as the result of an accident.

Dr. Eckermeyer stated that neither impression resembled the wound.

"Movie" Targets May Be Introduced for National Guard

Moving picture targets for the use of the National Guard may be introduced into the First Corps Area. The pictures are projected upon a paper screen moving as in battle, and are considered to make a good target for gallery rifle practice. They are now used in the infantry school at Camp Benning.

Two officers of the organized reserves of this corps area will shortly leave for infantry training at this camp and will be under the instruction afforded by moving picture targets.

AUTOISTS ARE UNHURT IN HEAD-ON COLLISION

Three women and six men barely escaped serious injury in Lexington, when two automobiles crashed head-on at the corner of Bedford and Hill streets. The fronts of the machines were damaged, and fortunately none of the occupants of either machine was hurt. One automobile was operated by William A. Carroll of No. 10 Monument square, Charlestown, containing four men, and the other car with two men and three women, was owned and operated by Axel Akonis of No. 49 Franklin street, Lowell.

The man is described as five feet, eight inches tall, weighing 200 pounds, medium complexion, light hair, and blue eyes. He wore a black suit and cap, black lace shoes, blue socks, white turn-down collar, black four-in-hand tie and pink armbands.

He was about to transfer his baggage to the South Station when seized. A railroad ticket and Pullman car ticket, both for Florida, were found on his person.

BEGS FOR DEATH WHEN SHOWN CRIME SCENE

Girl's Handkerchief Found on Tramp Held in Connection With New Jersey Murder

Madison, N. J., Oct. 13.—"Why don't you kill me? I don't want to live anyhow."

Frank Ruke, arrested in connection with the murder a week ago of four-teen-year-old Jeanette Lawrence, almost shrieked these words at detectives when he was led to the scene of the slaying in Kluxen's woods.

Ruke was arrested by detectives who had seen him wandering along a road. They promptly took him to the woods. At the outskirts he began to scream and yelled that he would not go farther. The police then literally dragged him into the under-brush and to the log where the girl's body was found. It was then that he begged to be killed.

A girl's handkerchief, embroidered with the initial "L"; a stiletto and a penknife were found on him when he was searched. The penknife had spots on it which the police think may be blood. It was sent to a chemist for analysis.

Fresh From Paris

Latest Word From Marie Suzanne

Paris, France.

FUR must trim the coat of one's tailleur in one manner or another, Paris decrees, and the models sketched above develop this idea along practical lines. Perilaine in deep plum color appears at the left, with both coat and skirt cut along exceedingly tailored lines. The collar, which may be worn either turned up or turned down, as one chooses; the cuffs and the edge of the coat are trimmed with gray astrachan, and two carved bone ornaments are used to fasten the coat.

It is a whim of Paris frocks, tailleurs and even coats, to combine two fabrics, one fabric in two shades, or a fabric plain with the same fabric beaded in jet or steel spangles; and it is a pleasing whim!

The three-piece tailleur at the right combines a short full coat of antique red velvet, trimmed with gray squirrel, with a frock of antique red velvet plaided in gray. The ensemble is smart and out of the ordinary.

PRESIDENT TO ATTEND KNOX FUNERAL

By Associated Press.

Washington, Oct. 13.—Official Washington mourned today the death of Philander C. Knox, Senator from Pennsylvania, who died last night suddenly from a stroke of paralysis. From all quarters, executive, legislative, judicial and diplomatic, came expressions of regret at the passing of a notable figure in domestic and world affairs.

Funeral arrangements, completed today, provided for services here and at the late Senator's home at Valley Forge, Pa. Services will be held here at 11 o'clock tomorrow at St. John's Episcopal Church, with President Harding, Cabinet members, Senators and Representatives, members of the diplomatic corps and other prominent in political, professional and social life in abundance.

Members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, on which Senator Knox had a leading place, are to be the honorary pallbearers. The active bearers, all personal friends of the family, will be Major Charles Wilson, Major J. Reuben Clark, Jr., William Watson Smith of Pittsburgh, Frederick D. Faust, Walter E. Clark, formerly governor of Alaska, and W. F. Martin, the Senator's secretary.

After tomorrow's services, the body will be taken to Valley Forge to rest Friday night in the living room of the Senator's country home there. Services will be held in Valley Forge Memorial Chapel Saturday at 1 p. m. The body will be interred in the chapel, where President Harding spoke last Summer during a week-end visit at the Knox home.

As a mark of respect, Capitol flags were at half mast today to remain for thirty days, the official mourning period.

Knox Eulogized in Speech by Walsh

By Associated Press.

Pittsburgh, Oct. 13.—News of the death of Senator Knox was received with profound regret in Pittsburgh. The announcement of the death of one of the city's most noted citizens brought many expressions of sorrow.

United States Senator David I. Walsh of Massachusetts, principal speaker at the Columbus Day banquet, of the Knights of Columbus, said of Senator Knox:

"Senator Knox was a national figure and was a great Secretary of State. He was a Senator that any State could be proud of. He was unassuming and spoke seldom in the Senate, but when he did speak, he uttered opinions of unquestionable value.

"He was a man of remarkably good judgment, and whose Americanism and patriotism always were unsullied."

'GREATEST WAR' UNDERWAY IN CHINA

Harding's Action Held Responsible for "Bloodiest" Conflict by Dr. Ma Soo

By International News Service.

New York, Oct. 13.—War in China threatens the Far East program of the President's armament conference and the bloodiest war in China's history is about to start, Dr. Ma Soo, representative at Washington of the South China faction of the Chinese Republic, declared here today.

He laid responsibility on the United States for refusal to invite South China to participate in the arms conference. The latest move of Sun Yat Sen, President of the South China Republic, in sending 20,000 troops to aid the rebellion in the northern provinces is a direct result of Washington's action in recognizing the Pekin government alone and in ignoring South China's demands for representation, Dr. Ma Soo declared.

"The greatest war China has ever known will start when President Sun Yat Sen, who will leave Canton today with a staff of generals, leads three armies, of 10,000 troops each, from South China in a drive on Pekin," he said today.

"This war will rage until there is no longer even a remnant of the Pekin government, and South China established a government for all the people.

"And I now warn the powers to keep hands off, for if they interfere, the whole Far East will become involved and there will be another world war."

Says Some Men Would Rather Kill Themselves Than Take Their Own Lives

Worry is a terrible thing; it has driven many a man to the grave, while others have had to walk.

A man will stay awake all night worrying about whether he's going to get to sleep.

He'll go to the church and worry about the bride showing up. He thinks that she won't come, but he's afraid she will.

He worries about getting brain fever, but the doctor tells him he hasn't got any brains and then he worries about that.

He doesn't go home for three or four nights and is scared to death that his wife will find it out.

Then he goes home and discovers that she hasn't missed him and goes out of his mind wondering why.

If she doesn't fight with him for a couple of days he worries himself sick because he thinks she doesn't love him any more.

Then she has to hit him with the poker to show that she does.

He has her arrested for battery and then worries about where he's going to get the money to bail her out.

He owes a lot of money and worries about it, but he doesn't worry half as much as the people he owes it to.

He knows he'll pay if he lives long enough, but he's scared to death he won't live that long.

He finally gives them a check, and they worry about its being good, but he doesn't. He knows it's not.

Still, how does he know the check isn't any good, he found it.

He owes a couple of week's room rent and he'd like to commit suicide, but he's afraid if he does the landlady will sue him.

He has lots of scruples and would rather kill himself than take his own life.

His insurance will take care of his debts, and he resolves to live even if he has to die to do it.

He shudders at his past, worries about the present and is scared to death of the future.

His back is up against the wall, but he ought to be glad the wall's there.

He resolves to give up worrying and then worries all the time about breaking his resolution.

BOUCK WHITE MOULDS CLAY IN MALDEN

Radical Has Quit New York Where He Was Flogged by Night Riders

Bouck White, unfrocked clergyman and social theorist, who was flogged by a gang of night riders in a New York mountain retreat for his alleged abuse of a French girl whom he had married, has taken up residence in Malden.

He has established a small pottery, and he says he hopes to "do something worth while," although he is not ready at present to announce "to the world" that he is proficient at pottery.

Regarding New England, White says he is glad to be back here. "It is my intellectual and spiritual home," White stated, who confessed he had enough of New York.

The divorce which the French girl, Emilie Simone, twenty years of age, obtained from White following the attack upon him by night riders, becomes effective today.

HARVARD DEAN TO LECTURE AT YALE

Arrangements have been made by the Yale faculty by which Dean Roscoe Pound of the Harvard Law School will give the Storrs lectures at New Haven beginning Monday. The dean, who is on his sabbatical year, will lecture on the philosophy of law. He is to give a series of lectures also at the University of Paris during the Winter.

PROVIDENCE BOY'S TRIP TO WORLD SERIES NIPPED

Providence, Oct. 13.—Second-hand reports of a World's Series game are pretty tame for even a thirteen-year-old boy. So when a young Providence fan of that age saw a $20 bill on his mother's bureau drawer he borrowed it. Generously he invited a young pal to accompany him to New York. Fate ordained otherwise, however, and a hard-hearted policeman interrupted their trip at the Bay State line wharf.

No feasts and famines in Filene value-giving

Too often a feast of bargains is followed by a famine of good merchandise; those who come after must pay for the super-bargains of those who went before. Filene values are a welcome relief from this condition; they play no favorites. They are for all the people, all the time.

Filene's

Furs from cold storage while you wait

Dress and grow thin!

A STOUT woman's clothes problems are peculiarly her own. Her slimmer sisters have a far easier row to hoe, because so much more attention is, as a rule, given to regular sizes. Stout women have found to their sorrow and discomfiture that "stout" clothes may be LARGE and still be neither comfortable nor good looking.

Their lines incline to squattiness, the patterns accentuate stoutness, they bind under the arms and the elbows have a playful habit of pushing through.

Filene buyers have studied this problem. Have had clothes made to slenderize large women's lines. Have had clothes made the way a stout woman is built! Sleeves and armseye have been made larger, and extra material put in the sleeve so that it can be let out enough to fit without binding or without having the elbow break through.

The patterns have been standardized by the experience in fitting hundreds of stout women. It is worth the while of any stout woman in search of clothes to find what the working out of this problem means to HER!

Filene better values!

YOUNG WOMEN WELCOMED AT ST. PAUL'S

New Member of Cathedral Staff to Plan Special Services for Girl Members

Does anybody care whether or not a young woman goes to church? Is anybody willing to give her friendly advice when she needs it? Is any room made in the church organizations for her?

The answer to all these questions is a decided "Yes," so far as the Cathedral Church of St. Paul is concerned, and the person who makes that answer possible is Miss Katharine W. Williams, who has recently been appointed to the Cathedral Staff.

Dean E. S. Rousmaniere has announced that Miss Williams' task is "to make the Cathedral a place of service and friendliness" to the many young women who drop in there. Miss Williams will devote herself especially to those who are comparative strangers to Boston, such as students and business and professional women.

Carrying on the spirit of Columbus Day the authorities at the Cathedral are planning to make the noon service on Friday, at 12:10, a Pan-American service. All the Latin-American consuls have been invited to attend this service and seats will be reserved for them. There will be special music and the principal speaker will be Rt. Rev. Hiram Richard Hulse, Bishop of Cuba, who is making a brief visit to this country in behalf of his people. Bishop Hulse said in an interview this week that he feared many of his people would starve this Winter unless they had speedy relief, that there was now practically a state of famine there.

A telegram has been sent to President Harding and it is honed that some reply will be had by Friday.

PLAN COALITION ON SALES TAX IN SENATE

Republicans Seek Democratic Support for Substitute for Pending Revision Bill

By Universal Service.

Washington, Oct. 13.—A movement was started in the Senate for a coalition between the sales tax advocates on the Republican side with the Democrats, to assure substitution of the sales tax for the pending revenue revision bill when the measure comes to a vote next week.

A poll of the Senate made by Senator Smoot of Utah and other sales tax advocates disclosed that approximately one-half the Republican Senators would vote for the sales tax plan. The Democrats have refused so far during the tax fight to take any united stand on the sales tax question.

Senator Simmons, of North Carolina, ranking minority member of the Senate Finance Committee, is strongly opposed to the sales tax, but efforts were made to have a caucus of the Democratic Senators called within the next few days, at which a party stand would be taken.

Republican Sales Tax advocates are counting upon Democratic support to have the Sales Tax plan substituted for the Finance Committee bill.

They have pointed out to Democratic leaders in the Senate that the Democrats could play good politics by forming the proposed coalition. Democratic Senators could vote for the Sales Tax as a substitute for the pending measure, it was pointed out, and could then turn around and vote against the completed tax bill if they desired and thus free themselves of responsibility.

Senator Smoot said that he will secure a vote on the Sales Tax in the Senate early next week, probably on Tuesday. He made the announcement after Chairman Penrose of the Finance Committee had said that the completed tax bill will be voted on in the Senate on Friday of next week.

CRISIS IS NEAR IN GERMAN GOVERNMENT

With Cabinet to Resign as Protest Against Seizure of Silesian Territory

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND, Boston American Staff Correspondent

Berlin, Oct. 13.—The German government is tottering, the so-called Wirth "cabinet of fulfillment," also sometimes dubbed the "pay cabinet," was in session the greater part of the day discussing the advisability of retiring as a demonstration against the decision of the League of Nations taking a part of Upper Silesia, which has been German for hundreds of years, away from Germany.

The cabinet is resigning is expected to declare that the Wirth cabinet accepted the Paris and London separation demands and promised to carry out the provisions of those ultimatums, but insisting that the League of Nations' decision makes that promise impossible to fulfill.

The democratic ministers demanded that the cabinet resign without waiting for the official advices as to the League's decision, which is forecasted in confidential dispatches from Paris and London and by the press as well.

LEXINGTON TO OBSERVE DANTE ANNIVERSARY

U. S. ACES TO DO AIR STUNTS IN PROVIDENCE

Daredevil Fliers to Compete in Saturday Regatta for the American Legion

Providence, Oct. 13.—Eyes skyward will be the order here Saturday when the aerial regatta for the benefit of the American Legion, postponed last Saturday on account of the high winds, will be run off.

Daredevil stunts such as hanging by the tail of a speeding, bucking plane, jumping from a racing automobile into an airplane, looping the loop and a 100-mile cross country race are all on the program.

The events will take place, or start, at Narragansett Park Speedway, and thousands of spectators are expected to be on hand.

Thirteen air buses with some of the best known flyers in the United States, heroes of the World War, are entered for the meet.

The changing from a racing automobile to a speeding plane is scheduled for Lieutenant W. A. Bowen who, standing upright on the radiator of a high powered racing automobile, the plane roars down upon him, will leap to the landing gear of the machine and climb aboard as the plane soars upward again.

Then Lieutenant Myron O. Twombly will jump from the speeding plane into another in full flight, while an open stunt contest for all kinds is promised as a real thriller for the fliers. W. A. Bowen who puts across the most sensational evolution will be awarded the prize.

The 100-mile cross country race is expected to attract considerable attention. The flyers will circle the State House to get their signal from Governor San Souci. They then will head off for Pawtucket, thence to Attleboro, Taunton, Fall River and back to Providence.

"Dare Devil" Bordman with aerial acrobatic stunts promises some real thrills, standing on his head and turning hand springs on the wings of a speeding plane.

Army Posts Ordered to Cut Down the Use of Water

Drink less water or use less water, is the order sent to the officers in command of the different camps, posts and stations of the United States army in the country.

The quartermaster, on account of the coming deficit, has sent warning to all corps commanders to instruct the different officers in command of army posts, camps or stations, to curtail the use of water.

If the expense of using it continues, the quartermaster claims that the fiscal year will show large deficit, as the appropriation of $1,600,000 for this purpose is found insufficient.

She was rushed to the Lynn Hospital by acquaintances at the lodging house. Physicians said that, while her condition is serious, she would recover.

WOMAN USING X-RAY UPON HURT DOGS

Her name is Mrs. Edgar Hubbel and she is the only woman in Boston who X-rays the broken bones and aching tummies of whatever dogs are sent to her—bulls and police dogs, big collies and smaller chows.

In her new laboratory at No. 93 Bay State road, Back Bay, for no money but the price of the plates, out of sheer love for "her dogs," Mrs. Hubbel photographs canines of high degree, and dogs of low degree, and finds out what ails them, and almost always, by her pictures, saves their precious lives.

Her labor is unique, and, so say Dr. Frank Flanagan and his associates, at the Angell Memorial Hospital, her work is masterful.

SAVES HUNDREDS OF DOGS.

She has saved hundreds of dogs' lives by methods which never had been applied by humans to dogs until Mrs. Hubbel was inspired to use them. Almost anything in the X-ray line that can be done to save a man, Mrs. Hubbel has succeeded in doing to save a dog. She is the mistress of a wonderful, new canine X-ray technique.

So agree the authorities. In the meantime, in the white laboratories in the basement of her home, Mrs. Hubbel is just now manipulating a new clinic table, designed for humans, for use with dogs. Ask her how she first started her work, and she will tell you:

"I had always done X-ray work for my husband, who is a dentist. And I always have been a great lover of dogs. So, quite a long time ago, a friend came in with a dog who was thought to have broken a bone.

"'I don't see why the X-ray won't tell what's the matter with doggie, as well as if he were a man,' said he. 'At any rate, why don't you try?'

"I did, and we found out it was a dislocated shoulder. Since then, just for a fad, and not for pay, except the price of the plates, I have X-rayed hundreds of dogs. And, in all my experience, I have had to give chloroform to but one dog. He was an ugly bull, suffering much pain, and suspicious of our good intentions toward him.

DETECTS UNIQUE AILMENT.

"How do dogs behave on the table, when being adjusted for the X-ray plate? Just like men and women, only often more reasonably. It's no trouble getting a dog ready to be X-rayed—not if you know dogs, and not if you like them. Here's the way I do it:

"Sometimes, as in the case of police dogs, who are very intelligent, the patients get on the table themselves. In other cases we help them. I start the X-ray machine first of all, to get them used to the unwonted noise.

"I comfort them up a bit, try to make them feel they are in the hands of friends. Then the keeper steadies them on the plate, while I turn on the juice. It is most fascinating work if you happen to love dogs."

PICKPOCKET SUSPECTS ARRESTED IN SUBWAY

Frank Sanipol of Temple street and Frank Dombkie Busse of Leverett street, both of the West End, were arrested in the Park Street Subway by police inspectors on charges of attempted larceny from the person.

Inspectors state the two tried to pick the pockets of John H. Gibbs of Howard street, Framingham, as the latter with arms full of bundles was about to board a Framingham car.

Vitamines, Milk, Vitality and Health

Learn How Milk Brings Health to Young and Old

Years ago when the mass of people labored out of doors, milk was their principal food. They led unpampered lives and were guided mostly by instinct. They knew nothing about vitamines, but milk satisfied their hunger and refreshed their bodies —a fact to them sufficient. So they were healthy and lived to be very old.

Now in our modern days we have countless concoctions that masquerade as foods, indigestible and totally lacking in nourishment. We are misguided by our instincts. We eat foolish things and are starving. Our tired bodies are never refreshed. We live a brief existence.

As children we acquired appetites that grew with us—we're just grown-up kids, and the boy's remarks to his stomach are just as suited to the man:

What's the matter with you—ain't I always been your friend? Ain't I been a pardner to you? All my pennies don't I spend In getting nice things for you? Don't I give you lots of cake? Say, stummick, what's the matter, that you had to go and ache?

That's just the matter—lack of proper food to build our bodies and sustain us—insufficient milk, with its vitamines. Back to nature we must go. The bulk of modern food is totally lacking in the necessary elements that make good blood, sinew and bone. Milk supplies these elements in abundance.

Dr. E. V. McCollum tells us that experimental animals die when vitamines are lacking in their food. Nutrition experts tell us that human beings must have the vitamines and that milk supplies them best.

There are plenty of examples of what milk will do. Dr. William R. P. Emerson, whose nutrition classes are spreading throughout the country, reports many "cures." Mrs. Ira Couch Wood tells of the wonderful accomplishments in Chicago. Rest and fresh milk change weaklings into sturdy youngsters—the most defective children are brought back to health within a few months.

Why not do it at home, instead of waiting for the establishment of nutrition classes? Why can't we consult our physician, find out what the defects are, and set about to correct them? It is not a class matter; it is just as much a menace among the rich as among the poor. It isn't a question of prices. Milk is the cheapest real food we have.

It is a serious matter and a personal one. We must see that the children get their milk. The life-giving power of vitamines means health, strength and happiness to youngsters. More milk for grown-ups means greater mental and physical vigor, a longer and more useful life. Milk is our only perfect food. Let us use more milk by all means. Let us drink milk and eat milk in every possible form.

"A quart a day the doctors say."

The Perfect Food

When Household Economists, Scientists, Medical authorities and the Press of America take unanimous and vigorous steps—as they are now doing—to impress upon the public the fact that Fresh Fluid Milk is not only a perfect food, but also the cheapest real food at its service—it should make YOU stop to think and to act!

Here is a food—the very essence of vitality and health—a food which, for as long as each one of us can remember, has been so liberally and so easily ours that we are prone to overlook and ignore its true character of greatness—and to seek in more complex and costly forms the sustenance it so simply provides.

Life today is in crying need of simplicity—wholesomeness—vigor—stamina. Fresh Fluid Milk gives all.

THE GIANTS YANKING THE PEP OUT O' THE YANKS

LAST CARD
The Yanks are today priming their hopes on Hoyt, their kid pitcher, who has already won two games. If he repeats they have a chance; if he fails the Giants will be the champions. A split finger, however, makes the odds heavy against the game youngster. Enough glory is already withal.

A CHIP O' THE OLD BLOCK!
DeVormer, Yankee backstop, believes in starting 'em young in the game, and here we have him "warming up" with his young son Harold before Wednesday's game. The youngster is a dyed-in-the-wool fan. DeVormer ran for Baker in the ninth. (Staff Photo.)

DESPERATE.
Not even Schang's fierce play could stay the Giants' rush. (Photo by U. & U.)

NO LUCK.
Carl Mays, the Yanks' pitcher, went to the well too often as the seventh game demonstrated. The blond twirler, however, deserved a better fate for he held the Giants to six hits.

CATCHING ON!
Frank Snyder, Giant backstop, proved in the seventh game that he is one of the cleverest catchers in the series. Rarely does a man pilfer a bag on him. He wields the stick as well as he works behind it. He made one hit Wednesday and not an error was chalked up against him. Here we observe him in his formidable looking working clothes. —(Photo by International.)

THE INJURED LIST GROWS!
A remarkable action picture showing Mike McNally, the Yankees' third baseman, receiving the injury at the second sack in the second that forced him to quit the game. McNally sent a high one into right and tried to stretch it into two bags. He is pictured trying to rise after plunging into the sack. His hand was badly injured. During the Yankees' half of the third he gave way to "Home Run" Baker. Mike sent in the first and only score chalked up by the Hugmen.—(Photo by Clifford S. Moore, Boston American Staff Photographer.)

CHUMMY WITH HIS BOSS!
Although the Giants pinned the bee on their team, Miller Huggins, Yankee leader, and Colonel Jake Ruppert, who once made pennant winning beer instead of ball teams, are confident that the Yanks will yet win the series. Miller and his boss are shown looking 'em over before Wednesday's game. —(Staff Photo.)

YOUNG AND SNAPPY!
Mr. Young, who hovers in the right garden for the Giants, joined the Raffles crowd when he stole second in the fourth session, after reaching first on a single. Emil Meusel drove a line single to centre and the Young man scored. Young had two and three down when he knocked one off Ward's glove. His was the only run scored by the Giants that inning.—(Staff Photo.)

AT 'EM, GANG!
Eddie Bennett, Yankee mascot, "razzing" a Giant during the game.—(Staff Photo.)

OLD RELIABLE!
Although the Yankees cracked out eight hits, Phil Douglas hurled a steady game.

A CROPPER!
Despite a nasty tumble, Bancroft, the Giants' shortstop, hugged the second mattress safely in the first on his long fly into the left garden. Bancroft got his double with two strikes and a ball down. Frisch flied out to Miller and Bancroft went to third. Mays was thrown out at first and the Giant shortstop died on third. The latter was snapped just as he fell headlong at second. (Int.)

GIANTS HAVE BIG EDGE EVEN IF HOYT DOES COME THROUGH

By NICK FLATLEY

New York, N. Y., Oct. 13.—The time has come, as the well known walrus started to remark, when the Giants are threatened with another world's championship. The same goes for the National League, also.

Miller Huggins and the Yankees are staggering on the rough brink of destruction. For the first time since this city series started, the clan of McGraw is in front. It took them seven games to finally hurdle over the American Leaguers, but now that they're there, everything is changed.

• • •

The impetus of the climb from the rear is with the Giants. The disappointment that loss of lead, and the wasting of good pitching brings has beset the Huggins outfit.

• • •

Babe Ruth and the big wareiub are missing; Bob Meusel's bludgeon has been whittled to toothpick size. The Giants are odds on favorites. They have not faltered in the face of defeat, and apparent inferiority

• • •

After the second game, their chances of being runners up were just the same as those of a last ceiling player in a two-horse stake race. But their nerve never faltered, and despair couldn't touch them when ultimate victory seemed as unlikely as the umpire who will never call one wrong.

• • •

Even if the stout-hearted and unabashed Walt Hoyt can come through with his third win today, the Giants will still have the big edge. They will have a couple of pitchers, real ones, Barnes and Douglas, to hurl in to the breach in the ninth engagement.

• • •

Even the law of chance as well as the baseball possibilities favors the National banner bearers. Hoyt has won two games against odds. He is due to lose. Art Nehf has outstepped a couple of remarkable pastimes and dropped them back. He has a victory coming his way.

• • •

Arthur steps in there with a cheerful gleam imbued with the victory spirit. Young Waite knows he will have to do the whole thing, for, despite their statements to the contrary, the Yanks must, realize, as well as the rest of us, that no city has a lucky streak can carry them through

• • •

In the last couple of games the Giants have been improving, the Yanks slipping. Perish Young and the rest of McGraw's flashers are running the bases again. Bancroft and the other Giant fielders are showing the tight defence that was peppered and shaken in the opening spasms

• • •

Balls hit into the Yankee outfield have been kicked around, and the tenacious of the inner defences is gone. The Giants, from the time they decided to explode their way into the front have been a good ball club. The Yankees, since Ruth was vetoed, have been losing their power

• • •

Without the big threat present, with the shot at the bleachers always a probability when the long bat waved, life has become more joyful for the Giants hurlers.

• • •

Shuffliu' "Phil" Douglas, the most shiftless bird that modern baseball has known heretofore, has made of himself one of the great World's Series heroes. He lost his first game after valiant and brilliant pitching, but he has won a pair since, the sort of performance that nobody, excepting "Phil" himself, even believed possible.

• • •

Phil has more than made up for what section of his existence was misspent. He will now be held up to the youth of the land as a shining example of a lost sheep, brought back to the fold. Phil isn't exactly lamblike, but he certainly has hurled himself into a fat contract for next season and chucked the Giants closer to the glory than they have been since their first series, in 1905, when the other league hadn't discovered how easy it was to beat them.

• • •

Blonde Carl "Maya," though beaten twice out of three times, didn't lose any honors in this class, and he will undoubtedly appear in it again, if the ninth game is necessary. Carl's defeat yesterday followed a perfectly pitched game. But for a couple of bad fielding plays he might have gone on turning back the Giants indefinitely

• • •

Luck was against him, and he was licked, but he will be ready to go in again tomorrow, if the Polo Grounds are still entertaining customers at that time. He is the sturdiest bird in baseball and doesn't ever himself out pitching.

• • •

Undoubtedly he is weary, for he has gone through a tough batle, but he's the hard boiled type that could deliver another game with a day's rest, and he just as good as ever. He will have to take over the job, anyway, if Hoyt comes through today

• • •

There isn't anybody else on the pitching staff good for anything except decorating the scenery out in the centre-field bleachers.

• • •

Nehf goes in today with everything favoring him. Twice he has gone to the hill, and with any luck at all would have won both contests He knows how to pitch to the Yankee batters. They cannot flirt with his stuff any more than they can unwrinkle the Douglas spittel

• • •

Southpaw Arthur is a tough bird when he knows he should beat a team. His record proves that. He will be rarin' to go this afternoon, and his brother Giants will be equally anxious to show him they can bat out a few runs for him once in a while

• • •

Young Mister Hoyt, in addition to a shaker team, has a further handicap. He is wearing a split finger which he admits prevents his throwing as many fast balls as usual. The whistle throw, mixed up with curves and the slow one, beat the Giants twice.

• • •

Knowing that Waite has a bum digit, they will be waiting for the floaters all the time. Perhaps the injury yarn is some of that propaganda stuff, but the fact remains that Hoyt struck his hand into a mean hopper the other day and cut the finger.

He'll put everything he has on the ball, being that sort of a bird but the wound is likely to affect his control and that will be more or less fatal. A chauffeur can't turn corners with a broken steering wheel

• • •

While we think of it, it's pertinent to remark that Maya in pitching his three games gave the world's best known example of control. He didn't walk a single batter in the whole parade, his one slip from grace being a close one that popped Johnny Rawlings in the first pastime. Johnny doesn't dodge any offener than he must

• • •

Carl and Douglas pitched a walkless game Sunday, and Phil had another yesterday, had not Snyder dropped a foul tip on Miller with two gone in the eighth.

Which shows you better than anything else that the two big boys have done some remarkable shadowboxing in this series, which was supposed to be mostly a slugging jamboree, or something like that.

CANTABS WIN 14 TO 0 OVER SOMERVILLE

Record Crowd Out to See Rivals Battle in Suburban League Contest

By Fred C. Lane

Cambridge Latin was its first Suburban League game, beating Somerville, 14 to 0, at Recreation Field, Somerville. A capacity crowd filled the stands and stood deep on the side lines.

The Cambridge eleven showed to advantage in the first half, scoring two touchdowns and kicking the goals. The fifteen minutes that did the heavy Somerville squad a world of good, for not once in the last two periods did the Cantab team advance into the Somerville territory.

Somerville kicked off to Cambridge in opening, and after four minutes of play the first Cantab touchdown was made. Conlon made a big gains at line plunging. McPhail fumbled on one of these plays and Duffy ran for 25 yards for a touchdown.

In the second quarter Cambridge found the weak spots in the Somerville line and made several gains through the tackles and around the ends. Zarakov ran around the Somerville right end for a fourteen-yard gain and the second touchdown of the game in the second period. He kicked both goals

Somerville spurted in the last half and had the ball on the Cambridge Latin fifteen-yard line. Unfortunable on the next play gave the Cantab team a chance to kick the pigskin out of danger. One successful forward passes within three minutes caused the Somerville rooters to show their first sign of enthusiasm.

Captain Dan Kelliher played his usual sterling game, as did Bob McPhail, another veteran. The forward passing of McPhail was a feature, as was the fine broken field running of Isidore Zarakov

HOLY CROSS WINNER OVER SPRINGFIELD

Springfield, Oct. 13.—Brilliant offensive work by the entire Holy Cross team, coupled with three costly mistakes by Springfield gave the Purple a 13-to-0 victory over the Y. M. C. A. Training College yesterday.

Springfield threatened the Purple goal but once in the game and that was when the home team carried the ball to Holy Cross' 20-yard line in the final quarter. Passes and line plays failed to advance the ball and Springfield lost it on downs

REMINDS IRVIN COBB OF AN OFT REPEATED STORY PLUMB RIDICULOUS

By IRVIN S. COBB.

New York, Oct. 13.—One of the most heinous characteristics of the amateur after-dinner speaker is that something is always happening to remind him of a story.

Before he braced up and reformed your correspondent was opensionally addicted to the vice of after-dinner burbling; so probably it is but natural that at this moment he should be reminded of a story, that is, to wit, as follows:

* * *

Once upon a time there was a man who accepted all that befell as manifestations of the workings of an inscrutable Providence. If good luck came to him he gratefully returned thanks for blessings and mercies vouchsafed.

* * *

If bad luck came he bowed his head in humble and unquestioning acceptance of this evidence of the need of chastisement from on high.

* * *

For a while things went well with him but in his later years misfortune marked him for her very own. Stroke after stroke descended upon his patient head. His wife ran away with the hired man. He mortgaged the farm, for he had grown used to his wife and he had sore need of the hired man. It being harvesting season.

* * *

His daughter eloped with a guitar picker. His son went to State's prison as the result of the mysterious disappearance of a neighbor's horse.

His life's savings were swept away when the bank failed. Cholera killed his hogs; glanders clyed his ho ses and his last milch cow choked on a turnip. His house burned down and the neighborhood usurer foreclosed the mortgage on his farm, and in his old age he landed in the county poor house

* * *

Yet uncomplainingly in his simple, humble homely way he accepted each of these multiplying visitations as parts of the scheme of a Divine plan not for him to cavil and lament. For him, strong in faith, it was to bear his burden and fulfil God.

* * *

One lovely Spring afternoon, by request of the overseer, he was plowing a field belonging to the insane ylum, which now his neighbors called and lorn. Without warning cam bolt from the blue. It struck him and he made a forced landing. There was a flashing of unearthly fires a crash like the crack of doom, and a smell like hard frying.

* * *

Our hero opened his eyes. The team lay dead and steaming in their tracks; the plowshare had been melted into a chunk of pot metal, and he, stripped of his garments, singed, scared, dazed and bareheaded, was branded on the small of the back with an utter stranger's initials and tossed headlong through a brush fence.

* * *

He struggled to his knees in the old and customary attitude of prayer lifted his arms to heaven, closed his eyes and opened his mouth to voice a resignation to the overwhelming affliction that had now crowned him with the direct of the first time the worm turned.

"O Lord" he said, "this is gittin to be plumb ridiculous".

* * *

Involuntarily I thought of this story when I thought of Miller Huggins, at the conclusion of yesterday's game, seventh of the World's Series Picture if you please the situation as it applies to the small, earnest gentleman.

* * *

Twice his team has been in the lead, once by a margin of two games and once by a margin of one. I have not the vital statistics at hand but if memory serves me right his team in every game that it lost was in the early stages of that game, well off in front.

* * *

He has seen his chief clouting star invalidated by an infected arm and an injured leg and a few other ailments of one sort and another. He has seen his pitching staff, never too dependable, wobble and swerve He has lacked batting when batting was called for. But until tonight he had not been in second place. Twice his club had been tied with the Giants but never had it trailed behind.

* * *

He went into yesterday's contest with bright prospects. As the contest wanes those prospects grown yet brighter. Mays, his pitching ace, is steady and reliable, pitching the best or half which would, by all human calculations, win anybody's ball game. Should his out fit gets the have of a precious run on the enemy.

* * *

And then his second baseman, who has been doing the superhuman in the field, makes errors, errors excusable but frightfully costly. And then the Giants not once but twice, at the far end of an inning, with two men out make a tally

* * *

And when the sun goes down the ybe of the Huggins now rated second in the standings and eddie Collins, the w with but one reliable hitter in the whole, namely, young Meusel, his out fit gets the have of a precious run on the enemy.

* * *

And even if Hoyt should make it three straight wins over the Giants in three times up, who is there left pon who to throw can call for succor in the decisive ninth game on Friday? It's getting to be plumb ridiculous.

* * *

We've had batting rallies in this World's Series and we've had exhibi ns of pitching gems sandwiched in between. Yesterday was a day made for the pitchers.

* * *

There was the aforesaid Mays twisting them out of his right hand p to puzzled batters, serving them to perplexed and annoyed with the smoke of their own friction.

* * *

There was Slowfoot Phil Douglas, the most malarial looking product that ever emerged from the low grounds of Tennessee, sliding in middiamond like one-quarter of Barnum's elephant quadrille, torpedo movement and lumbering of gait, yet spilling his juice as though it had been an infusion.

* * *

Yet in the opening stages there were signs and portents to justify the belief that this would be one of those old-fashioned pound parties.

* * *

It appeared probable that at least he, and perhaps both, of the opposing twirlers would speedily be lrrupted into a cup custard. But the pitching improved as the batting fell off

* * *

Frisch, the Fordham flash, failed to flash at the bat and Long George Kelly reclaimed the raspberries which on the day before he temporarily had surrendered.

Giants Confident of Landing Eighth Game and the Title Today

obstacvle standing between the Giants and the world's championship.

Hoyt was subjected to a severe barrage of strategical projectiles from the Giant bench in the way of orders from McGraw to his batsmen. The Giants found Hoyt baffling in the first game because he had a hot day for it and was at his best.

In the second game he pitched, however, they mixed things up on him by sometimes hitting the first ball and more often waiting him out.

SMALLEST CROWD OF SERIES.

Because of the unfriendly weather the early crowd was the smallest of the series.

At noon the advance crowd numbered less than 1,500, and the fans sat huddled together, with overcoat collars turned up and hands buried in pockets.

The first real sign of ginger shown by the fans was aroused by Nick Altrock and Al Schact, who made their appearance shortly after noon York and Al came out with a pair of dice nearly as big as shoe boxes and rolled the "gallopers" on the green in front of the right field bleachers.

Tiring of this, they went across to the left field bleachers and raged with the fans. Meanwhile, the band blew the icicles off its horns with a succession of popular airs.

The Yankees came out on the field first today. They made their appearance at 12:48 p. m. Most of them wore their sweaters and had their hands in their pockets. They strolled across the field to the home bench in little groups of two and three.

WRAPPED IN SWEATERS

There was little dash in their appearance.

As they started batting practice with plenty pitching to them, the sun came out brightly and the skies cleared. Frank Baker took his turn early in McNally's place. The injured third baseman is out for the rest of the series. His team mates think he tore a ligament in his shoulder. He is carrying his arm in a sling.

The first members of the Giants, trapped in heavy brown sweaters and led as usual by Jesse Burkett, made their appearance at 1 o'clock Some of McGraw's men were long overcoats of the mackinaw variety, among them Artie Nehf and Jess Barnes.

The bleacher crowd had increased to more than 4,000 by 1 o'clock and there were perhaps 2,500 in the upper grandstand

Big Phil Douglas was one of the last of the Giants to come from the clubhouse. The fans gave him a big hand.

MALONE WINNER OVER PANAMA JOE GANS

Never Boxing Bout at Arena Pleases Crowd of More Than Five Thousand

Boston boxing followers saw a clever exhibition at the Arena last night when Jock Malone of St. Paul defeated Panama Joe Gans of New York in the feature bout of ten rounds.

Clever footwork, skilful use of the hands and general ability as ring tacticians were witnessed by 5,000 who attended the bout. Both showed they were past masters

Malone carried off the award by some clean hitting in the eighth round when he had the dusky New Yorker in a bad way from two short right punches to the jaw and a straight left to the abdomen. Gans by clever footwork and his ability to get out of corners, saved himself much punishment and an impending knockout.

Charlie Parker of the South End without the famous Parker punch won over Mickey Kirst of St. Paul, but not until he had been given a hard go by the sturdy Kirst.

Frankie Ryan of Everett was the master of the situation in his encounter with Johnny Lucas of Boston, winning the judges' decision after eight rounds. Jack Flaherty of South Boston won over Julius Hanson, also of the Peninsula, in eight rounds.

SERIES IS ACCORDING TO THE DOPE AND GIANTS WILL BE CHAMPIONS

By HUGH S. FULLERTON.

New York, Oct. 13.—Christopher Columbus, discoverer of America, yesterday would have found a race of Giants wild with enthusiasm, celebrating the fact that the New York National League team, after years of failure, are on the verge of winning a World's Championship.

By triumphing over Carl Mays, because of three fumbles and two timely hits, the Giants captured the seventh game, won again for Shuffling Phil Douglas, and seem to have the series at their mercy.

* * *

The Yankees, outlucked, are in most desperate straits, their pitching staff dismantled, their team crippled, with Ruth and McNally both out, and in panic. The Giants, leading for the first time, expect to send Art Nehf back to the slab in the next contest and finish it up.

* * *

The dope worked again; it indicated that Douglas would win from Mays in this duel, that the score would be close, and that the Yankee team would commence to break.

* * *

But the dope was wrong in one thing. It indicated that Mays and Douglas both would be tired, and would be hit harder and harder, whereas, rallying and conserving their strength for the game which admittedly was the crucial one of the series, both pitched superb ball, held the opponents to low scores and fought it out as hard and as desperately as they did in their other two duels.

* * *

It was luck, combined with timely hitting, that gave the Giants the two runs they needed to insure their victory. It required three fumbles, a steal which never should have been permitted, and two hits placed just where they counted most to enable the Giants to score those two runs off the superb pitching of Mays. There was no luck in the Yankee's one run. They hit that home and earned it.

* * *

But while the Yankees will decry the luck, and well that they would have won had Ruth been able to play, it would be taking too much away from Douglas to admit their alibi good as it may seem. For Douglas pitched a magnificent game, rose superbly to the occasion when runs were registered and proved to the world that he should have been one of the great pitchers of all time.

* * *

He was stiff and seemingly arm weary at the start of the game and he received his nerve and spitter with much difficulty through the earlier innings. He was in danger through three rounds, and was forced to rally all his strength to stave off the Yankees, who were fighting hard.

* * *

But as the battle progressed Douglas loosened up. His speed increased, his curve got wider and faster and his spit ball commenced to crack almost at an angle. After he got going it was a question of whether the Giants would score after eight rounds. Jack Flaherty of South Boston won over Julius Hanson, also of the Peninsula, in eight rounds.

It required a lot of errors and sloppy playing, a bit of bad pitching and some speedy work to give the Giants that other run for which both teams were fighting.

* * *

The Yankees defence broke, just as the dope indicated it would break, and it broke in the spot where the break was to be most expected, at second. It was the fumble of Ward that gave the Giants their first opening, and it was worse work than that which permitted Young to steal second base.

* * *

He was stealing on a hit and run on a third strike, and Schang's sloppy work in making the throw let him beat it out. A moment later a hit sent Young across with the run which tied the score.

* * *

Worse work enabled the Giants to score their second run. Ward fumbled an easy chance, and let Rawlings reach first, again proving that it is better to be lucky than to be good.

* * *

Mays, who had pitched magnificently, made a mistake of judgment pitching to Snyder and the Giant catcher smashed a hard line hit to left centre. The hit was good for two bases ordinarily, and as it was made Rawlings should have been held at third, even if he was not caught going there, but Fewster muddled over the ball, failed to field it back, and Rawlings scored all the way from first on the hit.

* * *

The Giants had really only four chances to score. Once they were prevented from scoring because Mays knocked down a drive which secured a sure base hit, but that was the only bad break they had.

* * *

The Yankees, on the other hand had six openings, and three of them better than those of the Giants, and scored on only one. They, too, lost a run which was scoring when a runner was thrown out in a close play at first, and the break was even. The Giants lost one fine opening on a close decision at first.

* * *

The only answer is that the Yankee defence cracked, and failed to crack, that the Yankees failed in a pinch, as they doped to fail, and that the Giants came in the pinch, which records of the season show they are on the habit of doing.

* * *

He pitched a great game, but his team was breaking. That it did not break worse was due to the magnificent work of Wally Pipp at first. Pipp is not a great first baseman, but in this game he was great. He made three catches of wild, erratic throws which saved the infield from crashing, and he mauled out the double which paved the way to the only run that the Yanks could get.

MALDEN HAS A TOUGH TIME BEATING RINDGE

Malden High downed Rindge Tech 19 to 6, on the Malden High field in the opening game of the Suburban League yesterday. Rindge gave Malden all the trouble it desired and almost scored two touchdowns. The whistle, ending the first period, probably prevented Rindge from a tally, while Malden held on its five-yard line in the final session, after Rindge had marched half across the field. That forced a try for a field goal by Rindge. It went wide of its mark.

BURKE CROSS COUNTRY WINNER AT HARVARD

Cross-country trials at Harvard yesterday produced Billie Burke, former Notre Dame miler, as first place man after the six miles' jaunt. Captain Gregg Bemis was second and R. A. Lois third. A. T. Thayer finished first in the freshman trials, with L. G. Daubin second. Both teams start their regular season a week from Saturday, facing Tech at Belmont.

MEDFORD GETS VICTORY AFTER A HARD CONTEST

Medford High won against Brookline High 7 to 0 at Medford yesterday afternoon, scoring its only touchdown in the second period. The teams were evenly matched, hard fighting on the part of Medford's line alone prevented Brookline from tallying in the third and fourth periods.

HITTING THE BALL ONLY MINOR PART OF GOLF PLAYERS TROUBLES

By JOCK HUTCHISON

If golf were a game played on a flat piece of ground with no traps and bunkers or water hazards, and only days when there was no wind or rain, it would be a simple matter to score well, but this would take away 80 per cent. of the game's charm.

If such conditions prevailed it would be an easy matter to learn golf to the beginner, and there would be fewer duffers. But hitting a golf ball is not all that must be learned from the more experienced.

The course built over hills and dales or the flat one with many bunkers and water hazards requires some thought in playing.

* * *

Golfers raised on this latter type of course find it difficult to learn the art of playing a hilly one. The hills offer many opportunities to make blind holes and there are few golf architects who fail to take advantage of these chances.

It also offers an opportunity to make holes with a very great slant to the fairway where skillful lies are encountered frequently. Golf architects also take advantage of this feature.

* * *

It is little wonder that players from a flat course, although well trapped, find difficulty in making low scores or playing a satisfactory game over a hilly course.

* * *

This is not all with which the golfer has to contend. The wind and rain are to be figured as well. With the elements as another important factor, the golfers life is not always as pleasant one.

But, after all, conditions pleasant or unpleasant only add to the lure of the past ime.

I have a friend who is a tennis player. He cannot see why any one should prefer golf. We have many arguments about the two pastimes.

I told him I would take up the game of tennis just as soon as they began to trap and bunker the courts or build them over undulating ground and permitted the game to be played in a rain storm, or used more than one tool.

This is not an attempt to cry down tennis. It is a great and glorious pastime and the players of it, if they have a chance to get out in the open and do something for oneself in the athletic line [illegible] how much easier the tennis player's task is in a championship tournament than the golfers.

Tennis is more strenuous but there are times when golf is not only a strenuous proposition but exceedingly laborious and nerve wracking. A golf player with the "needles" in a championship is through! Know.

* * *

If you can imagine two golfers starting out in a thunder storm with lightning flashing every few minutes and the rain falling in torrents such as happened at the recent national championship, it is possible to get a correct idea of what a fa for there outside agencies are.

I mentioned that because I am going to give the duffer a bit of what play means under such circumstances. A good lesson on playing in the rain cannot go amiss.

There are times when every one will have to play a few holes in a downpour, even though he did not start out with that intention. A fair rain drops or even a good soaking, is not going to hurt anyone.

As long as one is out in the open, it matters little how wet he gets. Soldiers in the recent war surely taught us this.

I believe that the golfer who goes out deliberately to fight the elements as well as his opponent should be well prepared. A good stout pair of waterproof shoes with woolen socks should be one thing sure, to have.

I believe in keeping the body warm, too, and a heavy coat or sweater should be part of the outfit. If you have an umbrella or your caddie has one, you have all the equipment necessary.

There is a great tendency to hurry the shots in the rain, just as if one were going to shoot between rain drops. It is necessary to take a little more time if anything because there is more to be considered.

* * *

A different style of play is required. As there is no roll to the ball to speak of, as much carry as possible should be the player's aim. The rain will not bother the flight of the ball, for, if anything, it will help to steady it.

* * *

A much bolder style of play is demanded, especially around the greens. I advise one to hit with a little more distance in mind to make up for the lack of roll.

The grip for the putting also is a little necessary to observe the greens closely so that one will not fall into the mistake of failing to be up to the hole.

There is a lot of trouble with the clubs sometimes. English golfers have seen all the lead ne pros do to use billiard chalk on the face of their wooden clubs.

The idea is to keep the club and ball together and prevents the wet face of the driver from slipping across the ball.

The most important thing to consider is the grip. Wet grips play havoc with some players. Chick Evans is not a good golfer in the rain as Chick grips his irons very loosely, and when the handles get wet they are hard to control.

When the grips tightly, he loses [illegible] amount of [illegible]. A good firm grip on the club is very necessary.

* * *

There are many preparations on the market for use on the club handle. There are also special handles or grips made for wet weather. The writer is a reverse adv of the leather is a good idea. Some golfers it [illegible] whether prefer the rougher grip of the [illegible].

I might recommend a pair of cotton gloves. I have never seen [illegible] use gloves but this should [illegible] amateur from doing [illegible] when the [illegible].

They keep the hands from slipping. I personally like to feel the [illegible] of the club with my bare [illegible] dry.

A good big Turkish towel for drying club grips and hands before a shot is an asset. Take one with you. Some golfers recommend a little Scotch, if available, but I don't.

WESLEYAN READY FOR BOSTON UNIVERSITY

Middletown, Ct., Oct. 13.—Coach Watt has been paying special attention to the work of the Wesleyan back field in both offensive and defensive tactics. He expects Boston University will use the forward pass Saturday and he is strengthening his men against it. Parson at quarter back is putting lots of punch into the team's attack.

Winthrop Victorious

The East Boston Indians met defeat when they tackled the Winthrop A. A. football squad at Ingleside Park, Winthrop, 13 to 6. It was the opening game of the season for Winthrop.

BABE RUTH SAYS BREAKS AND INJURIES GIVE GAME TO GIANTS

By BABE RUTH.

New York, Oct. 13.—The breaks still go against the Yankees, and as a result of errors and injuries, the Giants captured the seventh game and went ahead of us for the first time in the series.

With the regular left fielder and third baseman out of the lineup, it cannot be said that the Yankees are anywhere near their campaign strength. It is true that both Baker and Fewster have come through with hits and played great ball. But if Frisch and Irish Meusel, playing correspondent positions, were removed from their lineup the Giants would be a different ball club.

* * *

I am writing this from the standpoint of a spectator and reporter and not as a Yankee player. I know that in the seven games both clubs have broken for and against them and pretty evenly distributed, but in the matter of injuries the Yankees have certainly got the worst of it, and I attribute those very costly misplays in yesterday's game to the mental effect of a crowded up ball club.

* * *

Mays outpitched Douglas, who was in trouble a number of times, with Giant pitchers warming up throughout the game.

* * *

The official scorers in World's Series are more liberal to batters and fielders than in regular season games. I never realized this so much as during Tuesday's and yesterday's games, sitting in the press box. Take that ball driven to Ward in the fourth inning, which was called a hit. I wish I could get a few hits handed to me like that during the season.

* * *

Both of the Giants' runs were the outgrowth of booted balls. Especially in the seventh inning, when, with two down, Rawlings drove one that Ward fumbled. Snyder followed with a ground drive to centre field that should have held Rawlings at third if not at second base. By the time the ball was mishandled in the outfield Rawlings had torn past third and scored the run that won the game.

* * *

The official scorer again refused to give anybody an error and of course the records will show that the winning tally was an earned run. Pretty tough on Carl Mays.

* * *

I am not looking around for a lot of alibis for I don't think the Yankees have reached that necessity. Wednesday's contest was a close, fast played ball game, worth a million dollars in movie to the winner but a heart breaker for either club to lose.

YANKEES SCORE ONLY RUN IN SECOND

Giants Make First in Fourth and the Other Tally in the Seventh

New York, Oct. 13.—Only three runs were scored in the full World's Series game yesterday.

The Yankees made their only tally in the second inning. The Giants tied the score in the fourth and put the winning run over in the eighth.

The details of the three half-innings in which the runs were made follow.

SECOND INNING.

Yankees—Pipp hit for two bases against the left field fence. Ward sacrificed. Frisch to Kelly. Pipp scored on McNally's single to right. Minoska Mike was forced at second, Bancroft to Rawlings by Schang. Mays hit a terrific clout over Ruether's head, but Johnny jumped up and by a phenomenal play got it.

FOURTH INNING.

The Giants tied the score in the fourth. Frisch was thrown out at first base, Mays to Kelly. Young got a single, which went off Ward's glove. Kelly struck out, but Young stole second. Meusel hit safely to centre field and Young scored. Rawlings went out to Pipp, unassisted.

SEVENTH INNING.

The Giants put over the winning tally in the lucky seventh inning. Kelly was tossed out at first base by Peckinpaugh. Meusel fanned. Rawlings was safe at first on Ward's error. Snyder unleashed a long two-base drive to centre field, Rawlings scoring from first base with what proved to be the winning run. Douglas whizzed the ozone.

DURABILITY COUNTS AS WELL AS SKILL

By GEORGE KELLY.

New York, Oct. 13.—Durability as much as skill and power counts in a World's Series. We proved that Tuesday, and for the first time since the series started, one week ago yesterday, we are out in front. That we are going to stay in front is rather a useless expression of the supreme confidence I feel in the Giants.

By sundown tonight the Giants will be champions of the world, an honor they have sought since 1906 when the old Giants with Mathewson and McGinnity pitching beat the Athletics of Philadelphia.

* * *

Our club yesterday came through victorious in one of the hardest, toughest ball games that ever was played, and it was won on sheer merit. They had tough chances to handle, just the same as the Yankees had, and if our American Leaguers were not able to stand up under the strain that is something for them to worry over.

* * *

We are riding hard now, and will rake them with our spurs today. I feel sorry for Hoyt and wish that [illegible] didn't have to pitch. It is really a shame to spoil his wonderful record, for the Brooklyn boy is a real pitcher.

There is a great deal to be said about the game yesterday, and the arguments will depend upon partisan spirit. I maintain that we outgamed the Yankees, and you can't condemn a team when it wins on its courage.

* * *

I admit cheerfully that Carl Mays pitched a beautiful game. I'll grant you that he deserved a better fate. If I were in his shoes I might feel a bit sore at the world, but just the same we got the hits at telling moments, and don't forget that Shuffling Phil Douglas pitched a whale of a game himself.

* * *

The Yankees have no cause for complaint on luck. In the first three innings they got to Douglas for five hits but when it comes right down to the pinch they were unable to get the ball through.

* * *

Mike McNally aliged a drive to right field in the second inning and put the Hug men into the running. For a while it seemed as if they might stay in front, but the break had to come, and it did when we started to force things.

* * *

Once more Phil Douglas came out on the mound and pitched with the skill of a wizard. In the second inning McGraw flashed orders out of the bull pen and Slim Sallee started to warm up for the game in case he might be needed. That seemed to stir Douglas. He came in and said in his own quaint way: "I'm all right, just give me a little time." He then started to pitch, and the Yankees were up in the air.

* * *

Douglas was not only effective, but his pitching was smart. He served the sort of ball that the Yankees could not hit. There was Bob Meusel for instance. Bob is a good hitter, but Phil had him shooting ducks in this game. Bob only hit one ball hard and then Ross Young ran a few steps and caught it.

* * *

In the seventh inning the Yankees had a chance to do things. Baker was on third and Schang on second with Mays up. Carl is a tough hitter and twice had hit the ball solidly being robbed by the fine work of Johnny Rawlings. Once again he flashed the ball toward right, but Rawlings was on the trail and Mays went back to the bench.

* * *

That was the last hard situation Douglas had to face and the army of fans who marched to the game realized that he was master. Now, although Phil was great in winning, don't believe that he was nearly as good as he was in the first game which he lost to Mays. The strain of pitching the three games told on him, just as it will tell on any ball player, but he kept working with head, arm and heart and came through with flying colors.

* * *

It is asking too much of the fans to want them to believe that all our breaks were lucky. We lost one or two decisions that favored the Yankees. There was the decision on George Burns in the fifth inning.

* * *

I believe that George was safe at third then, but the umpire ruled otherwise, and his decision will stand.

A Stirring Narrative of the Influence of Love on the Lives of a Girl and a Man

By Arthur Stringer
Well-Known Novelist and Author of Country-wide Reputation.

Published by Arrangement with International Feature Service, Inc.

IT was Michael Mullaly, the one-time cop next to Thadwyn Arms, the drunkard who had beaten his wife at the bottom of a three-case and opened the door of an adventure leading to dark and unlooked for consequences.

"Come in!" said Storrow, stepping back as the sodden figure lumbered past him. And he was neither gladdened nor saddened to behold that once defiant Hercules so sorry and suppliant a figure. Calamity and the cup that cheers had plainly marked him as their own. Silently the two men confronted each other in the clear light of the studio. Slowly recognition crept into the blinking Celtic eyes.

"Why, yuh're the lad——" began Mullaly. Then discretion brought him up short, with an uncomfortable hitch of the giant hips.

"Yes, I'm the man," said Storrow, understandingly with a glance down at the other's open and leaking shoes.

The dilapidated Goliath stirred his old-time enemy. He stood a little bewildered at the discovery that the no enmity lurked in the other's glance.

"That was a grand fight," he finally averred, with guile. "A grand fight!"

"Did it strike you that way?" asked Storrow, his thoughts a mile away.

Had Him Beat

"Yuh had me beat, me lad, yuh had me beat from the first!" He shook his bull head heavily. "But yuh'll never find wimmin folk fightin' fair, Yuh will not!" he protested, by way of extenuation, as he looked about for a chair, sank into it unbidden, and placed his wet hat on the floor beside him.

Storrow remained silent. It had been a foolish fight, he remembered, a tragically foolish fight. He noticed, Mullaly's wandering eye come to a stop at the decanter on the built-in-bar. That consuming thirst during the ensuing silence seemed to loom larger and larger in the room, to consciousness until it alone remained, mountainously powerful, with the light straining sinuous and gold and provocatively mellow through its core.

So Storrow, still without speaking, carried the rye and a glass and a plate of biscuits to the side of the wet and bedraggled Hercules. And Mullaly, no longer blinking, filled the glass and took it "neat." The blue lips smacked appreciatively. Then the faded blue eyes gazed dolorously down at the emptied glass. So lugubrious was that contemplation of plenishment and pinions, in fact that Storrow nodded. The man was wet and chilled, and in need of warmth. And without further ceremony Mullaly repeated the operation of promptly filling and just as promptly emptying the glass again.

"And that gerrl?" asked Mullaly, after another silence, as he crossed his ponderous pedal legs. "Had yuh iver seen her b'fore that day?"

Storrow acknowledged that he had not.

A Sharp Rebuke

"And I've been thinken' yuh hadn't, the many a time," retorted Mullaly.

"Why do you say that?" demanded the other, nettled by the note of vague triumph in his visitor's voice.

"She was a bad lot, that gerrl."

Storrow, with a tightening about his heart which was reflected in the sudden hardening of his face, rebuked his visitor's gloss.

"I didn't know that," he observed, with argumentive impersonality, yet in the grip of that torturing vulpine craft which is the handmaiden of suspicion.

"Why that gerrl," asserted Mullaly, leaning confidently forward in his chair, "was a"——

"Don't use that word," Storrow sharply cut in. He remembered, with a dizzy flash of despair, how he had first heard it, that hot Summer afternoon, through the rusty iron rods of a fire-escape. And it seemed a very long time ago.

"'Tis the only wurrud, sir," Mullaly solemnly maintained.

"But I don't believe it," cried Storrow, white to the eyes. "I can't believe it."

"Thin ask a little stage man be the name av Kreisler or Krissler, and see what answer yuh'll be gett'in'," calmly pursued his sodden torturer. "Or that skinny gold Roosian wid a face like a tombstone and a weakness for young gerrls, the same guld Roosian that O'Leary wanst put out av the Alwyn Arrums—and Gawd knows, sir, that same Alwyn Arrums was niver the abidin' place av angels!"

"That's nonsense," protested Storrow in his forlorn and bitter spirit of opposition. "She was never put out of The Alwyn Arms, and we're talking about her."

"Oi, she wasn't," he averred, from under glowering brows. "She wasn't, seein' she had a pull wid O'Leary himself, down in the office. And it was pull enough to have me put out of a job I'd held steady fir three years, doin' the best a man could wid."

"Was that after—after the fight you've just had the kindness to remind me of?" demanded Storrow.

"It was," retorted similarly, disgressing into a long and lachrymose recountal of the resultant disasters. But that recital of woe and injustice was already falling on deaf ears. Storrow's mind, electrified into a morbid activity, was busy with the past step by step and day by day, reviewing incidents which at the time had seemed innocent, reinterpretating them by the light of his dubious new knowledge. But he refused to accept the increditable.

World Disorganized

He lashed himself with the accusation of stark stupidity in listening to the meanderings of a drunkard and vindictive Irish janitor. The entire thing was becoming loathesome, unendurable. And as Mullaly, played on by the united warmths from without and within, betrayed unmistakable signs of surrendering to slumber, he was none too gently roused from his alcoholic stupor and helped out through the door, still quaveringly lamenting the cold days when an honest man wasn't thrown out of a job without a reason.

Storrow, alone in his studio, sat down and struggled to straighten out a disarranged world. But always between him and what promised to be tranquility stood that mocking and leering suspicion which proved too intangible to be combatted and too persistent to be ignored.

As he sat confronted by uncertainties which could prove more torturing than truth itself his unhappy and wandering eyes rested on his wife's trunk, the steel-bound theatrical trunk which stood as definite and so personal a part of her belongings.

Storrow remembered the little chamois bag of jewels. He locked make-up box which held them, and the carefully tied bundle of letters which rested there beside them.

Then he looked away, finding the thought of spying inexpressibly abhorrent. But still again his glance went back to the dark mass of the trunk, sarcophagus-like in its ponderousness, and still again he felt the tug of suspicion, demanding that it be verified or for all time rejected. Finally he surrendered to an impulse which proved too strong for him, and crossed to the trunk and opened it.

He could vaguely foresee, as he lifted out the first make-up box, in which, he remembered, the key to the lower box was hidden, that what he was about to do involved the danger of bringing him vast misery, of forging into his hands some damning truth which might forever strike down what was left of his happiness. Yet the demand for knowledge, he found, was stronger than his dread of it. To know, at any cost, that was the only, the vital, the essential thing.

Then, as his search though the make-up box ended and revealed the key to be missing, a surge of something eddly akin to relief swept through him. Circumstances, less fluid than his own will, was compelling him to draw back from that disheartening prospecting after self-knowledge.

A Disturbing Sense

And he was glad to be through with it. Yet, he contended as he fell to pacing the room, the mere fact that the key had been taken away from its customary hidingplace implied a reason for its removal. Terrie, suspicious, had not unnaturally decided to protect herself, had recognized some newer need for secrecy.

He went back to the trunk again, searching it from end to end for the missing key. He was assailed as he did so by a strange mingling of odors, the faint smell of greasepaints and cosmetics, the vaguer perfumes, from formless silk finery, of orris and patchouli and Apres Londi, the very mustiness of garments long unused.

They brought to him a disturbing sense of their owner's nearness, a silently rebuking ghost of her gazing down over his shoulder. But this did not deter him.

So fixed was he in this purpose that when he disinterred the second make-up box from under its paint-soiled towel in a low tray he first made sure that it was locked and then carried it across the room to his work desk. Then he returned to the trunk, replaced the trays and shut down the lid.

Before proceeding deeper into that campaign of espionage he crossed to the studio door and locked it. His fingers were trembling a little, he noticed, as he took up the Japanned tin box, so battered and bruised and dented. And he attempted to force up the lid with a knife from his kitchenette. This was passive, he saw, but it would leave the lock broken, the irrefutable evidence of his violation of confidence. By this time, too, he had become very prime sinner, the guilty one of the stalker, even with his new happiness as the quarry, had returned to him.

He wrapped up the box in a sheet of drawing paper and carried it to a twenty-third street basement locksmith, explaining, that he had lost the key and would like a duplicate. An uncomfortable sense of guilt crept over him as the locksmith took the box in his hand, inspected it and then with an equally pointed intent inspected Storrow.

It would not be an easy key to cut, the mechanic explained, but it could be done by noon the next day, if the box were left with him. Storrow confusedly explained, was out of the question.

Then in the simpler procedure, the locksmith retorted, pointing to the maker's name on the lid, was to take the box to the Broadway store where it had been bought and have a duplicate fitted

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

BILLY BROWN and his friend drove around a sharp bend in a wild hurry to catch a train; for each minute, one mile, that was Billy Brown's style, but Bill never will travel again. For the car struck a rock and they flew a full block, before Billy came down on his head; that was Billy's last taste of the pleasures of haste, for our hero was speedily dead. We'd not dare to deny it takes speed to get by in the hurry and rush of today but at times haste will fail and a chap live a small bit far better chance to grow gray. Sammy Smith built a house for himself and his spouse and he said to the contractor: "say, I insist on a flat where I can't hang my hat, so rush this place through right away." Well, the time was but brief till his house

Oh, we live in the days when folks all think it pays to hustle, whatever the game, for the tortoise, they say, has long since had his day and has won neither laurels nor fame. Billy Brown and Sam Smith and their whole kin and kith, who through speed make such awful mistakes, ought to learn from this rhyme that there may come a time when its wiser to put on the brakes.

Finnan Haddie With Green Pepper

Take finnan haddie and place on stove in cold water. Let come to a boil and cook until you can pick it from the bone. Drain and let cool; then pick into pieces not too coarse or fine. Place in pan with one quart of milk and three sweet green peppers cut in small pieces. Cook until peppers are soft, then add a good-sized lump of butter and the finnan haddie and water. Just before serving add the well-beaten yolks of two eggs. Cook a minute more, and then add the stiffly beaten whites.

Bachelor Girl's Reflections

BY HELEN ROWLAND

Copyright, 1921, by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

MAN'S first growl was offered up because a woman gave him something to eat that disagreed with him—and he has been registering right on that key ever since.

The modern girl's perfect candor has taken the sin out of sincerity—and most of the sweet scent out of the flower of sentiment. Ah, Daisy! Without the Serpent, the Garden of Eden seems a dull old place to most men!

To be attractive makes a woman talked about—as far as women are concerned; but to be talked about makes her attractive—as far as men are concerned.

A wise woman will never let a man know that she loves him; she will concentrats all her energy and finesse on letting him know that HE loves HER—otherwise he'd never find it out.

When a married man's eye lights up at the sight of every pretty girl, it is not always a sign that he wants to flirt; it's just a sign that he enjoys the stimulating sensation of feeling that he could if he would.

With all the women in the world trying to break the speed record and most of the men obstinately blocking the traffic, no wonder poor old Progress doesn't know whether she's coming or going!

A woman's pity for a man who loves her against her will may be akin to love; but a man's pity for a woman who loves him without his permission is a twin brother to boredom.

A cynic has said that man may believe the impossible, but never the improbable. Still, many a man believes himself when he tells a girl that he will love her forever, and ever, and ever!

Ice cream with hot chocolate poured over it seems to symbolize a man's idea of an "emotionally interesting" woman

Justifiable Pride

Robinson—What's that rooster across the street crowing so for? Roosters don't lay eggs

Cowley—No but he does some thing more wonderful. He just crossed the road without being struck by a fast a tomobile

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax

Income vs. Marriage.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

I am twenty-six and in love with a woman of twenty-four but I hesitate to propose, first because she is my cousin, second I believe her a little snobbish.

Therefore I am afraid that we will never do for each other, because my income is not a large one, but big enough to live modestly. Will please advise me what to do as I can't forget her

SUITOR.

IF you feel the girl is wholly unsuited to be your life-partner, don't confess to such weakness as your last sentence implies. Why don't you obscure the thing with her instead of with me?

The Bridesmaid Pays

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Would you please settle an argument between two girl friends.

A says the bride should pay the expense of the bridesmaid's clothes, especially when she wants her to wear just what she picks.

B says the bridesmaid should pay.

READER.

THE bride's attendants pay for their own clothes. Naturally, for the bridesmaid's dress is worn first at the wedding it is the property of the maid and she goes on getting the benefit of it. The bride generally gives each of her attendants a remembrance—a bit of jewelry or something dainty to wear.

BEAUTY BLEACH

A Wonderful Beauty Aid.

Unsolicited letters are received each day by Rita Murray, telling what wonderful results have been secured by the use of Black and White Beauty Bleach and Soap. All were delighted with the smooth, youthful texture of their skin.

You will find Black and White Beauty Bleach and Soap as delightful and sure as thousands of others, who have used it. If your skin is the least irritated, use little bits of soothing Black and White Cleaning Cream.

Drug and department stores can supply you with Black and White Beauty Bleach 50c; Soap 25c, and Black and White Cleaning Cream 25c and 50c the package. Write Dept. L, Black and White Tonic Co., 1200 Jefferson, Memphis, Tenn., for your Birthday Book and leaflet which tells you all about Black and White Toilet Preparations.

How Do YOU Make Tea?

Best Way to Prepare Cup That Cheers

"YOU civilized tea makers are all wrong," declared Captain Donald McMillan, chief of the most recent Arctic exploration expedition, now on its way to the frozen northland

"If you are going to please the Esquimo or the white man in the northland you'll have to adopt methods other than those usually used south of the Arctic circle.

"Five Esquimos, from time immemorial, have been making tea according to Siberian methods. They take the solid block of tea, looking and feeling pretty much like a slab of tar soap, and from this they chip off a hunk, put it in a pot and pour boiling water upon it. When the stuff has dissolved it is ready.

"It was not until Peary went to Greenland that the natives there came to know of tea in the leaf. They did not like it preferring to stick to their own way of serving tea, something in its raw state and sometimes with pork and salt.

"I am taking several cases of Salada tea north with me and expect to see how the natives the civilized way of making the drink."

This statement, made months before the tea-making controversy started in Boston, was dug out of the files of the Salada Tea Company as a contribution to the argument.

Captain McMillan added that in the far north the best work is done on board ship. Hot coffee, cocoa and other drinks fall into the background.

"For cold work, hard work in bitter weather behind the dog teams, no drink touches tea," he declared. "It has the power of setting under the skin and driving out the chill, death-like lethargic feeling.

McMillan's tea was sent to him packed in air tight, water proof cases specially prepared with double lead and aluminum linings

Keeping to Facts

Because I Am—said Fitzdoubleblank Brown, as pinching the yarn to a few unfortunates

"Oh, what' don't cha know," he lisped "I'm an awfully bally good shot I remember once I had a topping gun covered with dust and all that sort of rot old things. But I got my man, you know to oil the beastly thing, for I didn't want it to sound like a bad beans. Well, just at that time there were rumors of thousands of wild ducks migrating my goodness, south So I strapped on my bally gun, bid a brief adieu to wife, and sailed forth I had no sooner entered the swamps than I saw a beastly sight—no, not a sight—I saw such a sight, bah Jove, no! A thousand ducks rose all together! I fired quickly, and I brought down nine hundred and ninety-nine——

"Why don't you make it a thousand?" said a listener, sarcastically.

"Oh, what' don't cha know," retorted Brown "You don't want me to tell a lie for the sake of one bally duck, do you?"

SUFFERED ALL A WOMAN COULD

Mrs. Meyer Finally Found Relief and Health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Orange, Cal.—"I always feel very grateful to you, as some twenty years ago three doctors decided I had to have a serious operation. I had a tumor, and ulcers which would gather and break. I suffered so much at times, and it seemed as if I suffered everything that a woman could suffer. Then some one advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I took it until I was cured and saved from the operation. I have told women of my case, and the medicine times without number, and I am willing that you should use these facts and my name if you like. I also used your Compound during the Change, and I can do all my own work but the heavy part, and can walk miles every day as I help my husband in the office."—Mrs. J. H. MEYER, 412 South Orange St., Orange, California.

A great many women who suffered like this have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

FINANCE AND BUSINESS

By B. C. FORBES

Unemployment has decreased, yes. But there is still a lot of it. And Winter may bring more rather than less.

* * *

Here, for example, is the view expressed to me by W. H. Truesdale, head of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad:

"I think, since about the first of September, there has been a decrease in the ranks of the unemployed in the territory through which our lines run. I do not look for any great improvement in the situation during the next few months. The contrary is more likely to be the case as soon as cold weather comes, owing to the customary shutting down of many activities after seasonal building and other operations are completed or suspended."

* * *

In any event, there will be need for doing everything possible to combat the unemployment problem. Britain has bungled the problem badly, with the consequence that riots and breaking into stores have been rife. Unhappily, the British politicians in power sought long ago to win the favor of workers by distributing millions of pounds as "doles" or allowances to idle workers. This brought two evil results which should have been foreseen; it thinned employment out of the men to find work; and it became such a drain upon the national treasury that it could not be continued. And now the government is at its wit's end to know how to avert the alarming dangers that their short-sighted action has brought on.

* * *

What can we do, should we do, to remove all occasion for trouble here?

* * *

The committee on unemployment now in session in Washington, consisting of able representatives of industry, finance, commerce and labor, is formulating sensible recommendations. Its chief conclusion is that every community must bestir itself to handle unemployment in its own midst, leadership in co-ordinating relief measures to be shouldered in each case by the Mayor. State and county authorities are urged to cooperate. This is sound and practicable—as far as it goes.

* * *

But, after all, employment must come mainly from employers. Profiteers stand for the purpose of furnishing employment at the expense of taxpayers cannot and should not go one half way in coping with the unemployment confronting the nation.

Employers must be looked to for the best and most important efforts to provide work. A large share of the responsibility is theirs, for we are entitled to turn to those who run the business of the country to solve problems arising therefrom.

* * *

Is it feasible for employers to take on more men now and during the next few months?

* * *

I believe it is.

* * *

Take the railroads. It is notorious that they have been scrimping expenditures most rigidly, that they have not been buying normal quantities of new equipment, that they have been spending unusually little on maintenance, improvements and so forth. They should shortly be able to help. Already the government has disposed of $100,000,000 of their equipment trust certificates, and Congress is expected to sanction the planned financial relief without much further delay. Then the improvement in the security markets has been such that railroad borrowing is again becoming practicable. Moreover, earnings are increasing.

Therefore, since the railroads could spend quite large sums advantageously, every effort should be made by everyone concerned to enable the railroads to increase their working forces.

* * *

It is admitted that various raw materials are now selling below production cost, and the universal expectation is that such materials must and will recover by and by.

Now, why would it not be good business for strong concerns of all kinds to place substantial orders covering future requirements, instead of continuing to buy strictly from hand-to-mouth?

The banks precipitated deflation by applying the screws to borrowers when the boom—which these self-same bankers assisted in fostering—collapsed. Deflation had not only become necessary, but, as a matter of fact, should have been started long before inflation reached the point it did. Industrial and commercial borrowers of high standing will now, however, find most bankers in more sympathetic frame of mind. The banks have lots of money to lend. They are beginning to look for the right kind of borrowers, who for borrowing who can and will use credit wisely.

* * *

Why, therefore, should not responsible, strongly fortified concerns, large and small, all over the country, muster up enough courage and enough faith in the outlook to throw off at least some of their pessimism and some of their timidity, and, begin ordering materials which they know they can use and which they know are bound to advance in price sooner or later?

* * *

The U. S. Steel Corporation has set an excellent example by setting aside $10,000,000 for additions and improvements, with a view to furnishing work for idle employed.

* * *

If all employers in a position to do so would demonstrate their confidence in the business outlook, the unemployment problem would not become a menace, but would become entirely manageable. A vast amount of building and a great many other improvements have been delayed, and dividend payments of high labor and material costs. While certain arbitrary unions are led by men who reach defiance of the inevitable trend towards lower prices, if wages have been more or less readjusted in most directions. Consequently, it is becoming possible to start building and make needed improvements, at least on a scale to make a dent on unemployment.

* * *

Let employers get this basic thought into their minds: unless those now responsible for the running of our great industries demonstrate their fitness to do so in a way that will keep enforced idleness within reasonable bounds, there will arise, in time, an irresistible demand that some different way of running things be tried.

* * *

The net of it all is this: While it is eminently fitting that Mayors be requested to assume responsibility for unemployment relief, the real remedy lies chiefly in the hands of employers, especially powerful organizations well circumstanced financially.

And, incidentally, you and I and every other householder and consumer can do our part by making better times and wider employment by calling off our "strike" against buying, and by resuming normal spending.

OIL AND STEEL ISSUES RULE LOWER

Railroads Under Selling Pressure; Trend Is Downward After Irregular Opening

By W. H. ROSS.
Financial Editor.

The New York market was weak at noon, stocks in short supply being in a large majority. The trend was downward in the first hour and there was no improvement in the afternoon. Oils ruled weak, although a few low-priced ones showed gains. Rails were under selling pressure and reached the lowest level late in the second hour. Among the declines recorded were Reading, Southern Railway, Union Pacific, Northern Pacific, Lehigh Valley and Texas and Pacific. All were off a point or more. Steels figured in the recession. Sugars were quiet. American Sugar dropped a point. Baxon Motor sold at a new low. Trading was active, transactions aggregating nearly 200,000 shares for the first hour.

German marks fell at a new record low low in London and New York. This weakened foreign exchange in general. Opening quotations were demand sterling $4.55½, off 3 cents; French .0714, off .0014; lire .0350, off .0018; Belgian franc .0715, off .0002; marks .0071, off .0010½; gilders .3255, up .0035.

STEADY TONE AT START.

The market had a steady tone when it opened, but quickly passed from irregularity to weakness, easing off at once under offerings of Doheny oils, rails, steels and other industrials. Domestic oils showed the most resistance, with the exception of Mexican Petroleum and Pan American. They were leaders of the recessional which lasted through the first hour. Largest losses during that period were Central Leather common and preferred, Crucible, Republic Steel, Replogle, Mexican Petroleum, Pan American, Northern Pacific, Retail Stores and Royal Dutch. By mid-morning they were down from one to almost three points. American Linseed was notable for strength, advancing more than two points, while the general trend was downward. Cosden, the strongest domestic oil, was up more than a point at its highest. Steels were also on the decline, but the bulk of the early trading was in petroleum shares.

BEARS IN ASCENDENCY.

The trading situation was the same today as before the holiday. While they was no raiding, and selling pressure was general, there was no concentrated, bearish influences were ascendant over the market. Liquidation were depressed by railroad balloting in favor of a strike and the high call rate, which is interpreted to preparations for mid-month settlements, militated against acquirement of stocks for speculative purposes. The keen demand for acceptances is declared, however, to be a healthy index of the money situation. They are on a 4½ per cent. basis, or considerably below the Federal Reserve discount rate in this part of the country. The further slump in German marks and its consequent effect on foreign exchange had an adverse influence upon stocks this morning. Strength of domestic oil shares is due to a great extent to higher prices for gasoline and kerosene. As regards other commodities, the tendency of cotton, copper and hides is upward.

Cotton Market Opening

New York, Oct. 13.—The cotton market was somewhat irregular at the opening this morning, though generally 3 to 11 points higher. Liverpool showed a loss of 1 point, which was better than had been expected. Japanese and Wall Street interests were bought. There was heavy selling by the South, however, and rather liberal offerings on the part of the local trust interests. At the end of fifteen minutes after the list was called the market was 2 to 3 points higher. Opening prices were: October, 19.50; December, 19.30; January, 19.32; March, 19.90; May, 18.58; July, 18.15.

WORLD-WIDE STABILIZATION PLANNED

Evans Hears of Proposed Reform of Exchange Details of Which Are Secret

By C. B. EVANS.

Chicago, Oct. 13. — A sensational statement has been whispered by a friend into the ear of a man in this city thoroughly familiar with the currencies of the world, namely that a plan for the stabilization of the exchanges has been adopted on reasonable quarters and will soon be put into effect.

"The plan is simplicity itself," says this authority, who is declared to be not only highly responsible but varied in things pertaining to such a matter.

This information was brought out in a conversation the prime subject of which was the rise in foreign bills that has been going on recently under the lead of sterling. It comes from Washington but the idea is said to have originated in Europe. It was of no use for the recipient of this information to shake his head incredulously—"it's coming," said the repository of the alleged facts.

HOOVER GAVE HINT.

In this connection statements made by Secretary Hoover the other day in relation to the financial relations of the two hemispheres are recalled, though they were of such an indefinite character that one would not draw any specific conclusion.

Persons well informed on economic subjects naturally receive such stories with great skepticism. They know that a committee neither of men nor nations can tell commerce what it must do or order money to be loaned and borrowed at a specific rate, yet there is something in the administration of affairs that may palliate an evil or improve a condition, hence everything pertaining to this subject is eagerly listened to by all concerned in the welfare of the world.

EXAMPLE OF SPAIN.

In connection with this statement was quoted a recent utterance regarding the condition of Spain, namely that that country once acquired the bulk of the world's gold and immediately set it to work for power, and finally reached its pre-eminent negligible status in the world's finance. That allusion to give the clue to what is meant by the somewhat ominous statement of the authority referred to. He holds the essential facts in confidence and refuses to give clues to them.

We then must refer to a subject which has been much talked of ever since this country was said to be acquiring the free gold of the world, that is the possible abandonment of the gold standard. That possibility is not so remote that the United States can safely forget it. The difficulty of selecting another standard is probably the chief obstacle in the minds of European nations.

Even if an international currency were to be established, the difficulty would be almost as great. Whatever change might be made the process of shifting over would be one fraught with great financial disorder.

Another alternative might be a combination of gold and silver as the basis "the double standard" if you please. In that case, or if there were any probability of such action, the price of the white metal would advance far above its present level. But as against the inflated currencies of Europe it would seem that any one of these devices would be futile.

TRADING INERT ON BOSTON EXCHANGE

Local Market Irregular During Quiet Forenoon; Curb List Shows Some Improvement

After an irregular start, stocks reacted a little on the Boston exchange, reflecting the movement in New York. The local market was very narrow and without any interesting phase. Coppers were traded in on a small scale and mixed in movement. Rails were neglected and Swift and Co. was the only packing issue in evidence during the morning. Edison rights were a shade higher. Carson Hill and Eastern Steamship were comparatively active. Massachusetts Gas and Edison were up a point or more. Calumet and Hecla ragged five points and Maine Central and Loew's Theatres declined one.

Among fractionally higher issues were American Woolen preferred, Carson Hill, Brigham Mines, North Butte and Swift and Co. Small losses were sustained by Calumet and Arizona, Davis Daly, New Haven, United Fruit, American Woolen common, West End, Gardner, Eastern Steamship and American Sugar common and preferred.

CURB MARKET DULL.

The Curb market was dull during the morning and irregular as to trend. It showed improvement before noon.

Mutual was the most active issue around the start, and other leaders were Boston & Montana and Eureka. Among gains at the end of the morning were Boston & Montana 1-16 at 1 1-16, United Verde Extension ½ at 37, Eureka 1 cent at 87 cents, Mutual 2 cents at 46 cents, First National 4 cents at 88 cents, Colorado Extension 1 cent at 85 cents and Verde Mines 1 cent at 26 cents. Declines included imperial 1 cent at 5 cents and Palisade 1 cent at 18 cents. Bagdad, Hecla Divide and New Rilla had recoveries of losses.

IDLE THOUSANDS MARCH TO SEE LLOYD GEORGE

"Riot Barricades" Put Up in Whitehall to Block Possible Disorder

By International News Service

London, Oct. 13.—Communists attempted to march to Premier Lloyd George's official residence in Downing Street this afternoon during the most spectacular unemployment demonstration London has ever known.

Whitehall was in a virtual state of seige for labor organizations had previously given notice that idle workers would march past the Government buildings and would send a deputation to the premier to demand relief.

Hundreds of policemen were massed in Whitehall and special "riot barricades" had been erected. Scores of police hurried to Downing Street and informed the premier Communists were trying to reach his official residence.

There were thousands of unemployed in the procession that moved along Thames embankment shouting and waving banners.

BURGLARS GET $200 LOOT IN ADAMS

Adams, Oct. 13.—Merchandise valued at $200 and consisting of suits, overcoats and shoes, was the haul made by three burglars, two of whom were later caught, in a raid on the clothing store on Park street. Two of the burglars, James Williams and Joseph Doe, address unknown, were arrested at the point of revolvers by Police Officers William McKane and Walter Dinneen of North Adams, walking along the Boston & Albany Railroad tracks with the stolen clothing in their arms. The third member of the trio managed to escape.

Every ruptured man, woman and child should take advantage of this opportunity.

The Rice Method for Rupture is known the world over. You can now see this Method demonstrated and have a Rice Appliance fitted to you. Absolutely no charge unless you are satisfied to keep the appliance after having the appliance adjusted and you see how perfectly and comfortably it holds. No belts, no steel-pressing springs; nothing to gouge the flesh and make you sore. Can be worn night and day with positive comfort. Soft, rubber-like composition pad, any degree of pressure required.

Don't wear a truss all your life when thousands have reported cures through using the Rice Method. Why suffer the burden of rupture if there is a chance to be free from trusses-wearing forever? # OPERA PACKING ARLINGTON THEATRE

Boston Society of Singers Is Giving Fine Performance of "Faust" in English

By FRED J. McISAAC, Dramatic Editor.

Everybody ought to know that the opera company known as the Boston Society of Singers, which is the new tenant of the Arlington Theatre, is seriously trying to give good performances of opera in English, and succeeding better than anybody had hoped.

If the Boston Society of Singers wins enough support it will be a permanent institution in this city, a place where local singers of talent may get a chance and where a knowledge of good music may be obtained at low cost. Therefore it deserves success and it looks as though it would get it.

ORCHESTRA EFFECTIVE.

Yesterday afternoon I heard a performance of "Faust" at the Arlington. There was an orchestra which played tunefully and effectively. It wasn't as large as the Metropolitan Opera orchestra but it was large enough to play the "Faust" score, which is not very heavy, in an agreeable manner.

On the stage there was a chorus of about fifty, which sang enthusiastically and with good tone. These choristers are all young Bostonians, without previous operatic experience, but they had been well trained and gave good account of themselves.

Rulon Robinson, a young Boston church singer, was appearing as Faust. He sang very acceptably for the most part in a light, agreeable voice. I believe it was his first operatic appearance on a stage, which probably accounted for his getting off pitch and tightening up in somewhat numbers.

Helen Allyn, as Marguerite, sang with a lot of charm, though her action was exceedingly stilted. Herbert Waterous, as the Devil, was a success. He is an old Savage Opera veteran, lots of experience, and a remarkable English diction, and a robust bass voice, which has a ring of wear and tear. Stanley Deacon, as Valentine, delivered the big aria in a church choir baritone, but effectively enough.

GOOD ENSEMBLE.

Taking the production by and large, it was well worth the price asked at the box office. It must be remembered that the Metropolitan Opera Company now asks seven dollars a seat, and the world's greatest singers cannot possibly be presented by such a company as this. On the other hand it is possible to give a good ensemble and this is what they are doing at the Arlington.

There was an enormous audience yesterday afternoon, and with hearty support of the description the Beck brothers, who are sponsors for the company, should be able to strengthen their company week by week until it is a credit to the city.

U. S. RAILROAD OPENS NEW ALASKAN TERRITORY

Anchorage, Alaska, Oct. 13.—Territory on both sides of the United States government railroad being built between Seward and Fairbanks, Alaska, is being penetrated by wagon roads and trails which will serve as feeder lines for the railroad, according to Colonel James O. Steese, chairman of the Alaska Road Commission.

During the past year $206,654.82 has been spent on roads and trails, about 100 miles miles along the railroad. Several quarter districts have been opened, as a result of the road construction and, eventually, the mines will provide tonnage for the railroad, it is thought. Colonel Steese has recommended that the government adopt a ten-year road-building program which will tap every producing district in the railroad area and through connected roads, associating in other parts of Alaska distant from the road.

FRANKLIN K. LANE FUND OPENED TO PUBLIC

Washington, Oct. 13.—Decision to open the Franklin K. Lane memorial fund to public participation was announced today by the memorial committee, composed of Secretary Hoover, Franklin D. Roosevelt, and Adolph C. Miller, member of the Federal Reserve Board. This decision was made, the committee announced, in view of the widespread appreciation of the obligation which rests on the friends and admirers of a public man to make provision for his widow, which the slender emoluments of public office make impossible."

TEXTILE WORKERS VOTE ON MERGER OF UNIONS

New York, Oct. 13.—Members of independent textile unions throughout the country voted today on a proposal to amalgamate into a single "offensive and defensive alliance," to be known as the Federated Textile Unions of America. About 150,000 workers are involved.

Took Gland Pills—Gains 23 Pounds

Lynn Woman's Amazing Experience

"Since taking Glandex Compound, the new animal gland tonic, my wife looks, acts, and feels 30 years younger, having gained 23 pounds in 35 days," reports Mr. T. S. Pleasant, 2 Marianna St., Lynn, Mass., whose wife for years had been suffering from run-down condition, nervousness, loss of strength, poor appetite and thinness.

"Today she's always hungry, sleeps fine, her nervousness has disappeared, and hard work never bothers her. Glandex was a God-send to her."

The reason Glandex brings such wonderful results is because it feeds run-down glands—the cause of many run-down conditions—by supplying them with extracts from sheep and cattle glands. Just like recharging a storage battery! Also contains iron and other health builders.

If weak, pale, thin or run-down try this remarkable tonic. Brings results quickly—or your money back. Has helped thousands to regain youthful health and strength. Try a bottle! Sold at good druggists everywhere—Advertisement.

MOTION PICTURE News and Notes

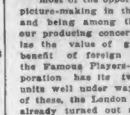
By Frieda Davis

NOT content with making the most of the opportunities for picture-making in this country, and being among the first of our producing concerns to realize the value of getting the benefit of foreign conditions, the Famous Players-Lasky corporation has its two foreign units well under way. The first of these, the Paris studio, has already turned out a few pictures, and at the present time such directors as John S. Robertson, of "Sentimental Tommy," and "Footlight" fame, and George Fitzmaurice, who made "Experience," "Idols of Clay," and other remarkable films, are busy on these English sets.

As for scenarists, Josephine Lovett, otherwise known as Mrs. Robertson, and Guida Bergere, in private life Mrs. Fitzmaurice, are busy writing continuities for their directors' business. Ann Forrest, Elliott Dexter, Dorothy Dunning and other of our players are already at work under these foreign Klieglights.



ANN FORREST

Another venture for this company is a studio in Berlin. Picture-making there is made at far less expense than in any other place, while the results from a mechanical point of view have decided originality and many improvements. "The Life of Pharaoh" is being filmed now under the direction of Ernest Lubitsch, and is said to be a wonderful "Passion," "Deception," and "Gypsy Love."

The hundreds of unemployed in that country are hailing the advent of an American company with tremendous ovations, for labor is so cheap there that it is said a production can be made for less than a quarter of what it costs in mechanical helpers here.

MEIGHAN IN TUCKER FILM

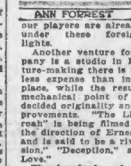
ALTHOUGH George Loane Tucker was one of the means of giving Thomas Meighan his opportunity which brought him stardom, Meighan, in turn, was of the means to bring about Tucker's opportunity. It was Meighan who first saw screen possibilities in the story and approached the director on the subject of producing it.



THOMAS MEIGHAN

Now again Meighan is to have a Tucker role, and one which is said to rival his first one, "If You Believe It, It's So," is next on the program. The film, "If You Believe It, It's So," was to have been Mr. Tucker's next production, when his illness developed and he died. He had already nearly completed his plans and had made notes showing exactly how he was going about the filming. Famous Players has bought the story and with it the Tucker notes, that the picture may be made as it was planned by its originator. Tom Forman will direct.

PETER B. KYNE SELLS STORY.

PETER B. KYNE finds that his time is pretty well spent, all things considering. In his home a few miles down the coast from Hollywood he writes stories and novels galore. Some he sells outright to the motion picture producers on the spot, others he prefers to see in print.

His newest success, "Brothers Under Their Skins," has been bought by Goldwyn for immediate filming after having had a vogue as a magazine story in the October number of the Cosmopolitan Magazine. Another contribution to Kyne's fame is that in order to be "on the lot" at Culver City, outside Hollywood, while his story is being arranged.

CAMERA CLICKS.

MAY ALLISON, who has completed her contract with the Metro corporation, and has decided not to renew it, has also given up—this is only rumored—all idea of appearing on Broadway this season in a stage production. She was offered an opportunity to appear in a Hilton play, "You, Me and Everybody," but it is more likely that she will be seen in a future Cecil De-Mille film instead.

MAE MURRAY has finished her first independent production, "Peacock Alley," and while her husband, Robert Z. Leonard, the directing, is busy cutting the film, she is studying up the script of her second venture, "Fun and Tears," from the original scenario by Frederick and Fanny Hatton.

MONTE BLUE, who came East to appear opposite Miss Murray in "Peacock Alley," transferred his cowhide boots to the Griffith Mamaroneck Studios to play an important role in "The Two Orphans," thereby adding another stellar light to the cast.

MILTON SILLS, who is rushed East to appear in the studio to another so fast that he can scarcely keep up with his film engagements, has been chosen to play the lead opposite Lois Wilson in the screening of Zona Gale's novel, "Miss Lulu Bett." Miss Wilson, by the way, is given an opportunity to smash up nearly as much furniture as Wallace Reid did in "The Affairs of Anatol."

Congress Invited to Canada at Our Cost

Senator Penrose opposes the sales tax with the statement that this is no time to try experiments.

The sales tax is "an experiment" only to the ignorant.

A statesman, or even a politician—or even a corporation representative in public life—ought to know at least what our immediate national neighbors are doing in the way of public policy.

Canada has a sales tax and it is very successful.

It is very much more successful than our forms of taxation, both in the matter of revenue and in the matter of public satisfaction.

The sales tax went into force in Canada in May, 1920. The tax was one per cent. on sales by manufacturers and wholesale jobbers—a two per cent. tax altogether. The range of articles taxed was very limited at first; since this tax was an experiment THEN. Yet the tax brought in $50,000,000—or one-seventh of the total Canadian revenue, and nobody felt it, and most Canadians forgot entirely that it was in operation.

This same one per cent. tax which raised $50,000,000 in smaller and poorer Canada would bring in $600,000,000 in larger and richer America.

The three per cent. manufacturers' sales tax, proposed by Senator Smoot, would bring in at least $1,000,000,000. And as nobody feels the tax in Canada and everybody is NOW highly in favor of it, it is reasonable to suppose that the same results would follow in our country.

Canada is now going to increase her sales tax rate per cent., with universal approval, in order to get rid altogether of the business-destroying and labor-destroying excess profits taxes and surtaxes.

When the sales tax was proposed in Canada it met with exactly the same opposition from the same ignorance upon the same ignorant grounds that the same proposal is now meeting here in our own country.

Every argument used by labor misleaders of the Gompers sort, or by reactionary corporation lawyers and politicians of the Penrose sort, is simply a repetition of arguments used by the same sort against the sales tax in Canada.

There is nothing original even in Penrose's objection to the sales tax as an experiment.

He is only repeating what equally ignorant legislators said in the Canadian Parliament.

There was not much excuse for this ignorant opposition in Canada, because the sales tax has been for a long time most successfully used in the Philippines. But there was more excuse for Canadian objectors than there is for American objectors because Canada has since added the might of her successful example to that of the Philippines.

Canada is our close neighbor. Its problems are much like our own. Its people resemble Americans in their thought and ways far more than they resemble Englishmen. They could repeal the sales tax at any time if they wanted to, and they don't want to. Those who opposed the sales tax when proposed are now its satisfied supporters. And it is discouraging to find men in the Senate and in the House who seem to know nothing about what the sales tax has done in Canada and for the Canadian peoples' prosperity, and who speak of the sales tax as still an "untried experiment."

And now for an educational offer.

If any considerable number of Senators and Representatives are as profoundly ignorant as Senator Penrose is in the matter of the sales tax, and of the successful operation of the sales tax in Canada, The American will transport any of our national legislators who would like to go in a special train, with all comforts and conveniences, to Canada, to let them personally inspect the operation of the sales tax and come back with a wider range of information and better fitted to deal with the tax situation.

The American has no personal axe to grind, no personal advantage to secure in urging the adoption of the sales tax.

The sales tax would probably fall more heavily on a great newspaper than on any other institution in the whole land. But The American nevertheless believes that this form of taxation is the best form for the nation, the form that will bring the greatest revenue and the form that will be, in general, the least felt.

The sales tax is called "the painless tax."

It is levied at the time of the purchase and becomes a part of the price which determines the purchase.

It does not accumulate to be taken at the end of the year in burdensome sums from a bank account which may have been depleted or from an income which may have been reduced by hard times.

You pay the sales tax or not, just as you please, because you buy the article or not, just as you please, and the tax is only a burden on EXTRAVAGANT EXPENDITURE, which ought to be discouraged.

The sales tax would not ADD to taxes.

The sales tax would REDUCE taxes and ADD to the Government's revenue.

Gentlemen of the Senate and the House, if you do not believe the statements which The American presents in this matter, then do accept The American's invitation to visit Canada on our special train—or trains—and see for yourselves how the sales tax works.

We welcome you all—particularly Senator Penrose.

The Police Parade

Every time Boston has an opportunity to see its police force en masse gives this old town further reasons for being proud of its protectors. The second annual parade of the Boston Police Regiment was better than the first. The next will be better yet, although this seems impossible.

Which feature of yesterday's procession gave YOU the biggest thrill? Many will say the two shotgun companies. More will nominate the machine gun unit. We liked the Traffic Division Band, convincing proof that the B. P. D. is now on even terms with the departments of other great cities in its ability to furnish its own music. One of these days, we expect the able boss of the Traffic Division, Captain Bernard J. Hoppe, will organize a police glee club. Then, speaking police-y, the Hub will be "all set."

Boston, proud of its Police Department, has good reason to be thankful to Commissioner Edwin U. Curtis and Superintendent Michael H. Crowley. The complete story of what they have done for Boston is yet to be written.

Went Directly to the People

Gratifying That State of North Dakota Has Secured Money for Its Industrial Reorganization Program

It is most gratifying news that the State of North Dakota has succeeded in selling the bonds which it issued to pay for the industrial reorganization program that was adopted by the Non-Partisan League.

The history of the State of North Dakota has been more interesting than the history of any other State in the Union during the last few years. There the farmers and the workmen united to overthrow the exploiting class which, through banks and middlemen, had been taking the cream off the farmers' and workmen's labor.

The people of North Dakota organized into what has become the famous Non-Partisan League, and after a few elections they succeeded in taking control of the State. Then they proceeded, not after the old-fashioned political method of destroying things and building nothing in their place, but they proceeded to adopt a constructive program, which included a State bank where the producers could get their money without let or hindrance from Wall Street, and State elevators, where the farmers could store their grain and await a favorable market for its sale, without being obliged to put their heads in the lion's jaw of the rich and powerful middlemen.

These salient extensions and functions of the State and other extensions were met by those whose profits they threatened with cries of Socialism, I. W. W.ism, anarchy, Bolshevism and all the stereotyped phrases by which the modern economic robber cries "Stop thief" at honest men.

Of course, the program could not be carried out without money. All great undertakings by the government or by any public service corporations require money, which comes generally through the sale of bonds.

The State of North Dakota issued bonds to meet this expense and the banks of the country refused to take them. Then began the campaign to prevent the sale of these bonds. But the State of North Dakota became its own broker and went directly to the people and sold the bonds.

Let this be a lesson to the community.

Judges' Pay and Morals

Few Are Corrupt, but Many Are Swayed by Prejudices

Copyright, 1921, Star Company

Henry Ford is right in saying that the salaries of judges of the United States Supreme Court should be substantially increased, but he is wrong in asserting that the present salaries of Federal judges, being small, subject the judiciary to temptation of money bribes.

We do not believe that a single decision of the United States Supreme Court was ever swayed by venality. This is probably true, also, in nearly all of our State Supreme Courts.

The very idea that the majority of the Supreme Court could be bribed by payments of money or need an increase of salary to keep them out of temptation from such corrupt influences is shocking to those who love their country and have faith in its institutions.

We do not mean to say that the Supreme Court always impartially interprets the law. We think it often fails to do so.

Judges are human, and they are affected by propinquity, by their associations, by the passions and prejudices of their class. They sometimes yield to subtle appeals to their vanity, to the flattery of wealth, and are thus seduced socially, but they cannot be bought with money.

Roger Taney, chief justice of the United States, who wrote the Dred Scott decision perpetuating human slavery, answered the call of the social class to which he belonged. Two billion dollars' value in slaves was at stake. But he was not corrupt. The law thus made could not be nullified until it was revoked. But as Lincoln said at the time, "We can change the judges." That was done.

Another distinguished justice of the Supreme Court, George Shiras, prevented for eighteen years an income tax upon wealth in the United States. He did so by changing his vote at the last minute from the affirmative to the negative. He came from a citadel of private wealth, Pittsburgh. He could not divest himself of the prejudices of his class. He was not corrupt.

The famous "Standard Oil letters" disclosed how that great organization of capital did use its influence with corrupt politicians. It could not even keep its hands off the judiciary. It led the politicians whom it controlled to nominate in many States judiciary candidates whose minds tended to exalt property rights.

Such men as judges naturally lean toward autocracy and plutocracy because they are strong. They distrust democracy and deny social justice. The moral sentiments of multitudes of people make no impression upon the highly technical, legal minds of such judges, although these common moral sentiments are the foundation of law and the mainspring of progress.

Too many judges live in a class atmosphere. They are welcomed and flattered in exclusive clubs, where the prerogatives of select classes are matters of most concern and where the average man is discussed, even though no disrespect is intended, very much as cattle kings discuss their herds.

In such an atmosphere judges are led, sometimes deliberately and sometimes quite unconsciously, by their personal contacts into believing that they are the guardians of the social fabric, instructors of legislators, and the makers, not the mere interpreters, of the law.

They become arrogant in their pride of place, usurp the functions of Congress, forget that they are only judges, not statesmen. They make the law responsive to the only public opinion with which they come in contact—that of the prejudiced and privileged few who think chiefly of themselves.

In the quiet chambers in which such judges write their opinions the voice of conscience is sometimes stilled and the murmur of the crowd is very far off. When that murmur comes from a mob it should be bravely resisted at times or denied by the fearless upright judge, for it is often wrong.

But when that murmur comes, from the conscience and moral sentiment of the masses, it is always the voice of God. Woe to the judge or nation that does not heed it.

Most Germs Among Rich

Paris, Oct. 13.—A furore has been caused in multi-millionaire circles in Paris by the grave assertion by two eminent savants that the avenue do Bois de Boulogne, flanked by palatial mansions and bordering the world's finest park, is the unhealthiest street in Paris.

The two scientists have a passion for germ-discovering. First they visited Square Drouot, where police records show traffic congestion. Here they counted 60,711 virulent microbes in 35.31 cubic feet, their standard of measurement being the cubic meter.

Satisfied of the danger of living in congested districts, they next went to the Champs-Elysees, region of nursemaids and children.

Horrified by the discovery that the farther they penetrated into aristocratic regions the more microbes there were, the scientists finally went to the avenue du Bois de Boulogne, where it is said nobody can live without an income of a million francs a year. At six o'clock in the evening they counted no less than 575,000 microbes.

As a result it is now officially stated that it is healthier — in Paris—to live in the slums than in the wealthy residential quarters.

THOUGHT AND PEP

You may be full of pep, but if your efforts are not directed by thought, and if you do not make plans in advance, of what you intend to do, the "pep" upon which you pride yourself does not amount to much.

Often the "peppy" person is not far thinking, hence fails to accomplish as much as the person who works less and uses more headwork.

So much has been said in the past few years about pep, and so many persons are gauged by the pep they display, that pretty nearly everyone who tries to make a good impression desires to be classed as "peppy."

It is much easier to do things physically rather than mentally and muscular strength and energy are often the test of the worth of a person at first sight, a condition which has arisen where pep has been sought, and which puts thought in the discard.

There is a place at the top today for the one who can and does think right.

A Mother's Fads

By Winifred Black

Copyright, 1921, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

SOMETIMES I think there is a good deal to be said for fads.

Here is a girl writing me to find out what I think about her mother, who—Violet declares—takes up every fashionable notion that comes along and gives her time to it. Now, Violet says, the latest fad of her mother is to adopt homeless and motherless children, and give them all the care formerly lavished upon her own children, who are now grown up.

"It used to be dogs," writes Violet. "And before that, birds, and during the war it was the collecting and sending of all sorts of goodies and comforts to the soldiers and sailors. For a long time, education and the schools were Mother's chief obsessions, but now—This last one is the worst of all. Won't you please write about these fads and tell us how to get around them?"

You have a good home of your own, Violet, and why do you criticise the life and actions of your mother? She is "free, white and twenty-one," as they used to say. And even if she is your mother, she has the full rights of every independent citizen.

Look at Mother Again

Life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, we are told, should be the inalienable right of every American. Among those rewards and appurtenances, we all allow to the sons and daughters of freedom, that of having favorite matter on which to lavish attention is certainly one.

I have not much interest in anyone who isn't interested in something outside of himself or herself. The woman who has no garden, no birds, no dog or cat—something dependent upon her love, or blooming for her especial delectation in the case of a garden—is not so happy as the woman with the "fad" of making something flourishing and happy.

As for the adopting and helping of the helpless children, I would not call that by the somewhat slighting name of "fad."

It looks to me, Violet, as if you were the child of a mother well worth having. But are you a daughter worthy of such a mother?—that is the question.

You say your own husband agrees with you about your mother's fads—no doubt of it. It is well that you agree—you and your recently adopted husband—but it is suggested that you both look again at your mother and see what is good and fine in her.

You—her own daughter—must have at least something of the loving heart and open, active mind of the woman who has a place in her heart and in all of her busy days for the children she is giving a home, and the greater gift of motherly care and love.

You Don't Own Her

Come, come, Violet, I'm ashamed of you! Are you sure there is no hint of the green-eyed monster in your attitude to what you call your "fad-ridden mother?" Perhaps you demand more of her attention than you need, and probably you are not only jealous but greedy to have saved for you all the money being expended upon the poor orphans your mother is helping.

I hope this isn't the case, for I think it is the height of meanness for a young, strong woman to try to limit the usefulness of her parents in any way—out of regard for her own future. You have a home of your own and a husband—and the two of you ought to be independent. And there should be an end of criticism of the mother who loves you so much and does so much to make the world better and her own life one of usefulness as well as happiness.

Get it well into your head, Violet, that you don't own your mother. No human being should be under the domination of another. The complete freedom of the individual is the best thing for society, especially when the individual is full of goodness and active helpfulness.

It would not hurt you to make your mother a "fad." She certainly is worth attention [illegible] and if you can learn to be something like her—well, the sooner you begin the better.

There are worse things than fads, especially the kind of fads you complain of. Open your mind, Violet, and be a pupil again of the mother who bore you—and not an acrid, narrow-minded critic.

Letters to the Editor

Navy Yard Wages

Editor Boston American:

In your many editorials favoring government ownership of all public utilities you state that government employes are much higher paid than in private corporations. This is not so with government controlled navy yards. A probable reason for this is the corporation-controlled Republican administration which has not the welfare of the people at heart. They are there to do as the corporations direct. It would seem.

Take for instance the Labor Wage Board, that was appointed by Secretary of the Navy Denby; this board admits in its report that, although wages of employes have been reduced to 40 per cent. above normal, the cost of living is still 80 per cent. above normal. A favored few have had but a 7 per cent. reduction in wages, while others have been cut as much as 40 per cent.

Navy yard workers have never been overpaid, so you can see where they stand now with pay reduced to 40 per cent. above normal, while living costs are still 80 per cent. higher.

A CITIZEN.
